MR. HOAR STILL MAKES THREATS.

But the Chances Are Against His Pushing Them in Open Senate.

THE DAY WITH THE GEORGIA BOYS.

None Are Among Those Chosen, but a Number Are Very Anxious to Be. News and Gossip of Washington.

Washington, April 11 .- (Special.)-The senate wrangled for two hours in executive session today over the Roach case. Senator Hoar insisted that he would call up his resolution in open session to investigate the past life of the North Dakota democratic senator, who is charged with having been a defaulter. The democrats insist that the charges against him were for an act committed before elected to the senate and with which the senate has nothing to do. Senator Gorman made a vigorous speech, in which he stated that if Roach was to be investigated the democrats would insist upon investigating all other senators who had been charged with any offense at any time and especially some who had been criticised recently by the press-meaning Senators Quay, Power and other republicans.

Senator Hoar said such threats would not prevent his pushing his resolution and intimated that he intended to prevent the senate from adjourning until his Roach resolution should come up in open session. The discussion lasted two hours and was decidedly heated, but no agreement was The senate committee on elections will take up the resolution tomorrow, but it is not probable that they will act. Whether Senator Hoar will carry out his threat and call it up in open session is not known. There would be a pretty mess if counter resolutions were introduced and the dirty linen of the senate should be washed before the public. It would be racy, but not calculated to exalt that alleged conservative and dignified body in the estimation of the people. Kenick Knocked Out.

The nomination of Edward H. Strobel, of New York, as third assistant secretary of state today puts an end to the Renick boom for that place. It had been expected for some time that Mr. Renick would be for some time that Mr. Renick would be appointed, but the pressure from New York upon the president in favor of Mr. Strobel was great. Mr. Strobel was secretary of the legation at Madrid under the last democratic administration and has had much experience. He is said to be a fine lawyer and a man who will fill the post-foreign offices to the senate today. It that he wants to nominate all the officers in the departments here before the senate adjourns in order that they may be thoroughly organized as soon as possible. Then he will give his attention to the foreign service. It is possible, however, that the names decided upon by himself and Secretary Gresham on Sunday will be sent

People Whose Cases Hang Fire.

Mr. Cleveland has insisted upon the confirmation of Mr. Eckles as comptroller of the treasury and it is probable that the senate will grant his request and confirm the Illinois man tomorrow.

The Milledgeville Postoffice There have been no new developments in the Milledgeville postoffice contest today, though hundreds of telegrams have been received from that city requesting the appointment of some different man. While there are nearly a dozen candidates, the race proper is between T. I. Newell, D. S. Sanford and C. M. Wright. The two senators have endorsed the former while Mr. Cabaniss will endores one of the lat-candidates, though which one of the two he has not decided. Is the Tiger in It at All?

Though two New Yorkers were among the nominations today, both were anti-snappers. The regular or Tammany deracy of New York have not gotten a single office yet and it is beginning to appear that they are not to be recognized to any great extent by the present administration. It is true that neither of the Now York senators has made a personal request request for any offices yet, but several Tammanyites have been strongly recom-mended for offices, while none have gotten any. However, their time may come

Confirmed by the Senate

The senate has confirmed the following nominations: Eben Alexander, of North Carolina, minister to Greece, Romania and Servia; William T. Towns, of Virginia, consul general to Rio de Janeiro; James E. Neal, of Ohio, consul at Liverpoot; Q. O. Eckford, of Missouri, consul at Kingston, Jamaica; James M. Justice—Henry V. Johnson, of Colorado, to be attarney of the United States for the district of Colorado; Charles Bellinger, of Oregon, to be United States district judge for the district of Oregon; William K. Reid, of Utah, to be judge of probate in the county of San Pete territory, Utah. Interior—Daniel M. Browning, of Illinois, to be commissioner of Indian affairs; Frank C. Armstrong, of Washington, D. C., to be assistant commissioner of Indian affairs. Daniel Morgan, of Bridgeport, Conn., today nominated for treasurer of the United States, is one of the leading citizens of his native state, socially, politically and financially. He is a man about lifty years of age, has been mayor of Bridgeport three terms, served in the legislature and has terms, served in the legislature and has been the president of a national bank for ten years.

Courad N. Jordan, nominated today for assistant treasurer at New York, is well known to the country as United States treasurer in Mr. Cleveland's first administration. He is about sixty-five years of age.

Edward H. Strobel, of New York, nominated to be third assistant secretary of state, served throughout Mr. Cleveland's first term and a part of the succeeding refirst term and apart of the succeeding refirst term and succe first term and a part of the succeeding republican administration, as secretary of the legation at Madrid. He is a graduate of Harvard college and Harvard law school. At present he is practicing law.

Daniel M. Browning, of Illinois, who is nominated to be commissioner of Indian affairs, lives at Benton and is about fifty years of age. He is a lawyer and in 1882 was judge of the circuit court of Illinois in his district. Mr. Browning is said to have made a strong effort to secure the position of commissioner of the land office.

Frank C. Armstrong, who is named as assistant commissioner, when as a resident of the District of Columbia, was originally appointed as an inspector in the Indian bureau from Louisiana in President Cleveland's first administration. He remained in his place for nearly a year under President Harrison. He was an officer in the older army and left it to join his fortunes with the confederacy.

C. B. Bellinger, nominated to be district judge of the state of Oregon, was the fortunate one of a quartet of personal friends who were striving for the place. He is a man about fifty-live years of age and enjoys one of the largest practices of any lawyer in his state. He is now a resident of the city of Portland and is a member of the law firm started by Senator Dolph.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Senator Gorman Interviews the President.

Washington, April 11.—Senator Gorman called upon the president today to discuss with him the question of the adjournment of the present extraordinary session of the senate and to ascertain what the president's views were in the matter. He had ten or fifteen minutes with Mr. Cleveland, who told him that he had several nominations which he desired to have considered by the senate and that he hoped to be able to get them all in by the end of this or the early part of next week.

Here's a Good One.

Here's a Good One. "Good morning Mr. President," was the remark of one of the office seekers early this morning "I suppose you recognize me?" this morning, "I suppose you recognize me?"
"Oh, yes, I recognize you," replied Mr.
Cleveland, "but I cannot place you."

The president met one of the greatest of his political enemies this morning and the champions of high tariff and low tariff exchanged courtesies. His caller was none other than Governor McKinley, of Ohio. A pleasant and somewhat touching part of the interview with the governor was when Mr. Cleveland offered his sympathy upon the business afflictions which have recently befallen him. Altogether the meeting was almost enough to furnish a text for a treaty upon the defense of partisanship. Cle eland and McKinley

THE AFTERNOON EDITORS

Called Upon the Secretary of the Interior

Yesterday.

Washington, April 11.—Members of the Southern Afternoon Press Association called on Secretary of the Interior Smith this morning. They were introduced by H. H. Cabaniss, of The Atlanta Journal. Following was the party: J. W. Benson, Galveston Tribune; William F. Burbank, Winston, N. C., Sentinel; Thomas D. Evans, Lynchburg Advance; Zeno T. Harris, Minneapolis Public Ledger; Charles J. Stewart, Roanoke, Va., World; J. B. Pound, publisher Chattanoogan News and Knoxville Sentinel; H. M. McIntosh, Albany, Ga., Herald; Frederick S. Cox, Mobile News; Rufus N. Rhodes, Birmingham News; J. O. Foy, Danville Star; J. P. Kerr, Asheville Citizen; William W. Archer, Richmond State; Henry P. Clarke, Columbia, S. C., Journal; Joseph G. Fiveash, Norfolk Publio Ledger; Pleasant A. Stovall, Savannah Press; Thomas R. Gibson, Augusta Evening News.

The secretary welcomed the editors and in the afternoon went with them to call on the president. Yesterday.

TROOPS FOR ANTLERS.

War Department Officers Think Agent Bennett Is Excited.

Washington, April 11.—Another request for troops to go to Antlers was received at the war department today from the secretary of the interior. The request was made on information received from Indian Agent Bennett. The request was telegraphed to General Miles, commanding the department of Missouri, who replied that Captain Guthrie had left Fort Reno, I. T., for Antlers on Saturday with Company A, Fourth infantry consisting of forty-one men and was-expected to reach his destination today.

Officers at the war department are inclined to believe that the trouble is not as serious as the dispatches of Agent Bennett indicate. His telegrams come from Muscogee and state that he will go to Antlers as soon as the troops arrive.

And Bemained Over in New York to Talk with Tammanyites.

New York, April 11.—The Sun this morning prints in the local column: "Secretary Lamont changed his mind late on Sunday night and remained in town until yesterday morning. He then returned to Washington. Late Sunday evening he called on ex-Secretary Fairchild and yesterday he conferred with Messrs. Whitney, Grace and others. The information last night was all to the effect that William A. Poucher, of Oswego, was in the van for the collectorable. Mr. Poucher now has the unqualified support of Henry J. Mowry, of Syracuse.

"The office of postmaster of New York has been practically offered to Tammany and declined."

THEY BAGGED HIM.

by the Cudahys.

And Caused Pardridge to Lose Nearly a Million Dollars.

How the Plunger Was Called on for Margins, and How He Raised the Money.

But He Was Rattled.

Chicago, April 11.—The bull clique in the wheat market was after big game, and they bagged some of it. The famous plunger, Edward Pardridge, seemed to be the person aimed at, and he was crowded unmercifully. Pardridge was found too slow to respond to the call for marto respond to the call for margins, which brokers with whom he had deals, showered upon him, and forthwith the brokers bought in a large part of Pardridge's wheat in the pit. The scenes in the pit were very wild while the brokers were buying the big plunger's wheat. Meanwhile Pardridge was not idle.

John Cudahy is the ostensible head of the bull clique, and Pardridge sent an ambassa-dor to him to his office, suing for terms. He was accorded a settlement in from two to three millions of May wheat, it is said, at 87 cents per bushel, which settlement, it is thought makes Pardridge a poorer man by about $750,000 than he was before. The excitement, though intense was no what usually attends a big jump of 4 cents per bushel in the market. Nobody had any May wheat for sale except the clique. The crowd was generally out of it, and were determined to keep out. They were afraid of the stuff, they said. They confined their attention to July wheat, and sawed the market for delivery up and down about 1 1-2 cents per bushel.

As soon as Pardridge had made the private settlement, the manipulators let the price drop 3 cents, but Pardridge is not out of the woods yet. He is understood to be still short enough to lose him another $1,000,000 besides his losses of today. He sold out five thousand shares of West Chi-cago street railway stock to help him pay today's losses. He was in extremely bad humor and told newspaper reporters who besieged him with questions to mind their own business: he could attend to his, he

He Was Very Nervous.

For once, it is said, Pardridge was a very much rattled individual. He was led from his house this morning by his two sons, and one or the other of the boys was at his elbow every minute of the exciting scenes of the session. His condition was such that his friends kept him off the floor of the exchange, but the financial exigencies of the occasion made frequent visits to the banks in the vicinity of the board of trade necessary, and his frequent pilgrimages were watched by curious crowds of boys and

One of the traders who is said to have most remorselessly called margins on Par-dridge, was Mr. T. J. Ryan, the packer. Ryan was in the gap for three hundred and fifty thousand bushels, and he had no reason to expect consideration at the hands of the Cudahys. He took advantage of his principal's (Pardridge's) slow response to a margin call to close him out, thus escaping further risk of loss, and al chances of getting into the clutches of men who had it in for him on account of a legal fight commenced by him to escape the re-sponsibility of a one million pound rib deal. Since Pardridge got his full line out, the market advanced 11 cents a bushel. He has most of his trades margined to 91@93 cents, and was today putting forth tremen-dous efforts to get into position to further protect his interests. The Shrewd Cudahys.

In this connection a report became current this afternoon bearing on the inten-tions of the clique and illustrates the castiron grip it seemingly has on the situation. It is to the effect that the Cudahys have been making arrangements with commis-sion and elevator houses having the bulk of the northwestern trade, to take the trade on their books direct and let them out of the gap. That is to say, if the northwe principals, who have wheat sold to the clique, do not make good the full differences the commission firm through which they do their trading, will not be held for the The policy is said to have been suggested by Cudahy, the manipulative brains of the combination, and the effect of it would be to convert a very powerful element on th board of trade from a state of opposition which might be fatal to the success of any corner into a condition of calm indifference There has been no kicking from northwest ern commission houses today, whereas a week ago the air was surcharged with pro ern commission houses today, whereas a week ago the air was surcharged with protests from that quarter against the ruinous policy and the wideness of running corners. The commission men stood good for the trades of the men who had wheat sold to the clique. If the margins come, well and good, so much more for the clique. If they don't come, the clique takes what it can get and calls the trade square. It is also stated that P. D. Armour has no longer any interest in fighting the clique and that he has been on the bull side since May wheat left 78 cents, instead of being short 10,000,000 bushels as many have supposed. He has issued a belligerent manifesto, and today surprised the trade by publishing a bullish report from his expert. This, it is asserted, simplifies the situation immensely and leaves the bull clique long directly against twenty million bushels sold for northwestern accounts and also against Pardridge and the other hears who have overstayed their market and find themselves caught like rats in a trap, apparently powerless to escape and unable to make anything of a fight. Just at the close the market was jerked up again and the final figures compared with last night's closing showed an advance of 3 1-4 cents.

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—William Howe, of New York city, counsel for Carlyle W. Harris, was given a private audience by Governor Flower this morning. After Mr. Howe left Governor Flower said he would carefully consider the case as presented by Mr. Howe today, but could not tell how soon he would be able to reach a decision.

All Is Peace Now.

Chicago, April 11.—The strike at the work's fair ground seems as ancient history today as Caeser's Gallie war is. The strikers were all at work, and the exposition officials were too busy to discuss the late unpleasantness further than to express general satisfaction at the agreement reached last night.

Says That the Property Has Been Illegally Managed-The Receiver Has Gone to Macon on a Hurried Trip.

Savannah, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)— The action of the Richmond Terminal officials fell like a bomb in the United States court this morning, when, without any warning whatever, Henry Crawford, attor-ney for the Richmond Terminal, addressed the court and stated that he had filed two motions today. One asked that Receiver Comer, of the Central system, be discharged and all contracts under the receivership be annulled on the ground of illegality. The other moved that the order of Judge Speer in regard to the reorganization committee authorizing loans to the Central be set aside on the ground that said orders were imprudent, irregular and erroneous and that the court had no jurisdiction whatever in the cause to enter such orders and that the same are entirely void. These motions were filed under the Rowena Clarke bill, which placed the Central in the hands of a re the lawyers assembled. Judge H. B. Tompkins made an argument for the Central Trust Company, asking the appointment of an independent receiver for the Savannah and Western on the ground that it was a competitive sys-tem with the Central and had not been properly managed by the receiver. He was answered on behalf of the Central by Captain Cunningham, who said that the interests of the Central and the Savannah and Western were mutual and affidavits were pro duced showing that there was no competition except in conjunction with the same

Taken by Surprise.

This argument, however, became of minor importance when the Terminal people sprung their motions. Mr. W. G. Oakman, received and Henry Crawford, attorney for the Terminal, came down from New York Mon-day night and until the case was sprung no one knew anything about their mission, which had an air of mystery about it. It was just after Mr. Lowrey, of Lowrey, Stone & Euerbach had unished speakig in the Savannah and Western case in behalf of the reorganization committee that on the broad ground of their rights to make charges against the administration of the system under the receiver that Henry Crawford addressed the court and read the two motions under the Rowena Clarke bill above outlined. Judge Pardee straightened up to listen to every utterance and every eye the court was intent upon the speaker. Mr. Crawford said he appeared to represent the Richmond Terminal Company, which owned 42,000 shares of the Central stock that had been disfranchised by that court. He charged the district court with acting in copartnership with with court had no right to appoint a receiver for

"The proceeding whereby a district judge takes charge of an interstate system of railroads" said he, "are most unusual and entirely without precedent. The property has been illegally and improperly administered-under authority of the court and its receiver-and orders have been passed which will not bear the test of investiga tion, and are illegal from beginning to end I refer to the order authorizing the receiv er to borrow money without stating in the petition to the court to what use the money was to be put. But most unusual of all was the order authorizing the receiver to contract a loan with the Hollins syndicate, and making a contract that the syndicate could negotiate collateral securities belong-ing to the Central Railroad Company as soon as its bonds fell due if they were not paid. This order was most unusual and without precedent and we shall move that it be annulled and the receiver discharg-ed."

Mr. Crawford was in the midst of his argument when the court adjourned until 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at which hour he will continue.

It was hinted tonight that Mr. Crawford would charge in his speech tomorrow that Judge Speer should be impeached as having would charge in his speech tomorrow that Judge Speer should be impeached as having administered the property illegally and improperly. One of the Richmond Terminal men stated that he did not think such a statement would be made, though he believed it ought to be done. Mr. Comer left for Macon tonight but would say nothing about the case or object of his visit. He probably goes to confer with Judge Speer. It is said that he will return on a special in time to be present at tomorrow's hearing. President and Receiver Oakman said tonight to a representative of The Constitution: "We made the motions as the owners of 42,000 shares or a majority of the Central railroad stock which has been disfranchised and did so simply to protect our interests. We think the property has been improperly and illegally administered by the court and we moved an annullment of the orders and the discharging of the receivership as the only course by which our interests could be properly protected. They would be extinguished under the reorganization plan, and as we saw a means of escape, took advantage of it. We have been quiescent until now, and I cannot forecast the future or say what course the Terminal will pursue in case the orders are annulled and our suit successful. Our interests are too large for us to let them be extinguished by the proposed reorganization and we shall fight to the end."

Fitzgerald Says Success Is Assured.

New York, April 11.—General Louis Fitzgerald, the president of the Mercantile Trust Company, who is receiving deposits under the reorganization of the Georgia Central system, said this afternoon:

"The success of the reorganization plan is assured by the deposits of securities. The holders of more than a majority of the Savannah and Western bonds have deposited or agreed to deposit their bonds. The stockholders of the Southwestern road are holding a meeting at Savannah today and will co-operate in the reorganization."

Dobbins's Proposition to His Creditors.

Nashville, Tenn., April 11.—A meeting of the creditors of Dobbins & Dazey was held in the city today. All debts of the farm except about $5,000 were repersented.

Mr. Dobbins made a proposition to turn over the assets to the creditors, if they would release him, so he could reorganze the business. Another proposition was suggested by some of the largest creditors, in substance to turn over the assets of the firm to Mr. Dobbins and let him realize all possible for the creditors. It was agreed that this proposition should be formally drawn up and presented to each creditor for consideration, with a statement of the condition of the assets and liabilities as soon as an accurate one can be made.

RAPID TRANSIT IN NEW YORK. The Commission Considers the Underground

New York, April 11.—A meeting of the rapid transit commission was held this afternoon at the home of William Steinway. The session was understood to be chiefly for the purpose of hearing John M. Commissioners Steinway, Spencer, Bushe, Starin and Inman Mr. Wilson and his sons, Mr. Bowers and Beaman, were present when the meeting was called to order.

Mr. Bowers presented his report. The city, he thought, could lend its credit to carry on the construction of the road. He cited a case of the Brooklyn orage. The city, however, could not interest itself in any corporation.

any corporation.

Mr. Wilson's first proposition was not omplete, he said, in several important particulars. It meant a distinct loan by the city and would be a violation of the law.

The proposition that Mr. Wilson build from the battery to Fourteenth street and the city the remainder of the line was next examined.

Mr. Bowers said he thought it would not be lawful to build from Fourteenth street north, but Mr. Wilson's conditions that it must be sold on certain terms after completion, would, he thought, be construed by the court as a mere evasion of the law. He is satisfied that the plans proposed are not feasible, basing his opinion on two verdicts in test cases already made in the state. Mr. Wilson's plans were withdrawn. HOW IT IS ARRANGED

George Bradley, a well-known colored man, went home about 10 o'clock and flew into a rage about something his seven-year-old boy had done. Picking up a piece of plank the man beat the child to death. Horrified at what beat the child to death. Horrined at what he had done, Bradley went down town and purchased wome rat poison and went back home. He and his wife both took a dose of it. The poison did not operate fast enough for Bradley and he procured a razor, and, getting on the bed, cut his throat, making a gash four inches long, nearly severing the Sheriff White telegraphed Deputy Foster, who has charge of Burkhardt, not to leave Little charge of Burkhardt, not to leave Little Rock until tomorrow morning. It is understood here that no witnesses will be examined except Burkhardt, who will be asked to give his history, after which, if the evidence warrants, the grand jury will be summoned and a thorough investigation made. This programme was adopted to prevent unnecessary excitement during the preliminary examination.

ELLIOT SHEPARD'S WILL.

He Leaves Over Two Hundred Thous Dollars to Churches.

New York, April 11.—The will of the late Elliot F. Shepard was filed by the probate this afternoon. It was executed July 15, 1891, and disposed of an estate estimated at $850,000 in reality and $500,000 in personal property. He gives to the trustees of the presbytery of New York $100,000 for the general religious and evangelical work of this city. He also gives the same trustees $5,000 to be used by them for the benefit of the Seventh Presbyterian church of Jesus Christ of this city. He gives to St. Paul's church of Tarsus, Asia Minor, $100,000. He devises all his real estate to his widow, with the residue of his estate to his children.

St. Louis, Mo., April 11.—Menger particulars have been received here of a cyclone at Page City, Mo. Three people were killed and a large number injured. The most terrific halistorm that has been known in this section for years visited St. Louis tonight at 8 o'clock. at work at the time, and the explosion caused terrible havoc. Three hundred miners are entombed in the mine. The engine house is in flames and there is the greatest fear that hun-dreds may have perished. The rescuers who went down were driven back without being able to bring more than five of the dead and the fate of the other miners is in doubt. The most agonizing scenes are witnessed and throngs of men, women and children-relatives of those below-are crowded about the mouth of the coal pit. The Worst Is Feared. Later advices from Pont-y-Pridd did not lighten the calamity, and the worst fate is fewed for hundreds of miners. The pit is worked in sections, one being above anoth er. At 9:45 o'clock this evening, it was still At 9:45 o'clock this evening, it was still impossible to obtain more than meager details of the accident in the coal mine. The first alarm was given at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The sparks from an engine in the four-foot seam is supposed to have lighted a pile of waste cotton and the flames spread to the woodwork and finally ignited the inflammable gas in the seam. All the men ran toward the landing. Many were overtaken by the fire and smoke, fell and were left to their fale by their comrades in advance of them.

Comparatively few of the men who were in the seam at the time of the explosion reached the landing.

The Work of Resens At the entrance of the shaft, a rescuing party was formed by the pit surveyor. The party got as far as the landing at the seam party got as far as the landing at the seam where the fire started but were driven back almost immediately by the dense smeke is suing from the seam. The surveyor took his men back to the surface. After a half hour's rest they went down again and forced their way ten yards into the workings. They found four dead bodies which they bronght back with them. Attempts to go further into the workings were vain, as the woodworks were burning and large masses of rulps were falling incessantly from the roof. One of the rescuing party who ventured too far was killed.

The men who saved themselves immediately after the fire broke out, were too much confused and frightened to observe the position of their fellow workingmen.

the position of their fellow workingmen. They are unable to give any clear account of the distribution of the miners, and the ne must, therefore, proceed der all the difficulties of uncertainty. Not only are scores of miners' families at the mouth of the pit, but also the miners who were saved and the men of the other shifts.

All Supposed to Be Dead. There are numerous volunteers to unbecomes possible. At present the flames and smoke would render any such undertak-ing vain, if not fatal to the party making the detecnt. There is little doubt, moreover, that most, if not all, of the men left below have been suffocated or burned to Another attempt to enter the seam on which the fire started has proved resultless. Although the rescuing party saw six dead bodies they were prevented by smoke and heat from reaching them. Where the fire had been extinguished they were also unable to make any progress, as they could not remain in the foul atmosphere. The number of men still in the mines cannot be ascertained, although it is known to be well above fifty. There is a little hope that some of them found refuge at such a distance from the burning section that they are still alive.

Nuspected.

Greeneville, S. C., April 11.—News reached here today that the bodies of E. W. Hensley, wife, a granddaughter and a twelve-year-old son were found Monday morning in the ruins of their espin.
They lived above here on the side of a grassy mountain in a remote and secluded section. The cabin is supposed to have burned during Sunday night. Investigation is being made as it is thought unlikely that the family would have failed to be aroused by the fire or would have had any difficulty in escaping from the small building. The scene of the tragedy is in the moonshine section and there is a suspicion that Hensley may have become involved in some of the family feuds so frequent in the mountains and become the victim of some one's vengeance.

The Governors' Convention.

Richmond, Va., April 11.—Mayor Ellyson, in connection with the reception committee from the Chamber of Commerce, is making every possible arrangement for the pleasant entertainment of the governors and others who are to meet in contention here tomorrow. So far as can be learned, there are about thirty of the distinguished visitors in the city. The full programme of entertainment has not been completed, but it is safe to say that old Virginia wilk keep up her reputation for hospitality.

THE DAY IN AUGUSTA. Important Instructions Received from Post-

aster General Bissell -Other News. Augusta, Ga., April 11 .- (Special.)-Instructions were received this morning at the postoffice from Postmaster General Bissell in regard to the letter carriers' service. He stated under the law approved by the supreme court working hours of carriers were fixed at eight hours and for over time carriers were entitled to extra pay, but he calls postmasters down and instructs them to work their carriers within the limited time and complained of numerous claims made upon the government for payment of extra service of carriers, which he says must be abated. Under this construction of the order the force of the Augusta office will have to be increased, else the service will not be satisfactory. The hours of the carwork are not required to be consecutive, but can be fixed by the postmaster. The instuctions further state that the postmaster has no authority to appoint, remove, reinstate or promote mail carriers. They can only be removed upon recommendation by complaint of the postmaster to the de-partment. If the postmaster violates the order he is admonished that he may be re-moved from office for the cause.

Wallace Cody, a driver of a delivery wagon for the Augusta Ice Company, was before the recorder this morning for lashing Charley Ferris, a little white boy, with a whip. The driver complained that the boy was annoying him by jumping up and hanging on the rear of the wagon, which was in violation of the employer's instructions and he threw the whip at the boy intending only to frighten him. The boy said Cody hit him with the lash and his mother said a welt was raised on his back from the blow. Cody was fined $5.

An Armed Kid.

An Armed Kid.

Mike Vaughan, an eleven-year-old boy, was arrested this morning. Mike had arranged all his plans to run away from home last night with one of his companions and got Charley Herzog, his boy friend, to borrow a pistol for him, so he could be armed on his journey to see the world. For some reason or other Mike did not leave the city and young Herzog meeting him this morning asked for the return of the pistol. Young Vaughan got mad with Herzog and pulled the pistol and pointed it at him frightening him into a crying spell and threatened to whip him. The officer says the pistol was concealed. Judge Pierce required the lad to give $150 bond for his appearance in the city court to answer the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

The Ladies Who Are Building It Are Rearly Ready to Open.

THE SOCIETY HAS A MEETING.

And Reports of the Committees Are Read, Showing the Work Which Has Been Done.

The ladies interested in the Florence Crit-tenden Home for Girls held a meeting yesterday and an interesting meeting it was.

Very few people in Atlanta have any dea how near the home for fallen wom Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Wolf have bee trying for some time to build is completed.

Last fall these two ladies seeing the necessity for a place of this kind, went to the general council asking for help. Their appeal was one that the members of the general council could not withstand and fter the two ladies had laid their case before that body Mr. Shropshire, of the aldermanic poard, offered a resolution setting aside a large lot the city owns in the western par of the city for the home. Mrs. Barrett informed the general council that if the city would give them the land that she and her associates would secure the money with which to build the house.

The council instructed the city engineer to survey and set aside the piece of groun to survey and set aside the piece of ground for Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Wolf went to work. They first secured an architect, who gave them a design for a three-story thirty-eight-room building with a basement. With the plans before them the ladies realized that the building would cost $7,500 and without a dollar in hand they went to work and let the contract for the building. Then as the contractor pushed his work the ladies went out seeking for the money. Mr. Crittenden gave pushed his work the ladies went out seeking for the money. Mr. Crittenden gave them $1.400 as a starter and sent a check for half of the amount, but when the time arrived for the other half he sent his check for $800, making his donation $1,500. With Mr. Crittenden's gift as a nest-egg the ladies worked hard and diligently and have raised all but $1.400 of the money.

And that $1,400 they are now needing very badly indeed.

The house is now nearly finished and will be turned over to the ladies within the next two weeks, provided they are able to next two weeks, provided they are able to pay the contractor the balance due him, something like $1,400.

But the ladies do not just now know where that money is to come from. Of all the money they have raised only a very few dollars have been given by Atlanta people and Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Wolf are not pleased with the way the home people have been treating them. When the home was suggested they had many promises, but when the time came for raising the money those who had been profuse in their promises failed to come up. The money now needed, however, must be secured and the ladies are sure to have it.

IN MEMORIAM.

George I. Seney

THAT WERE HELD AT EMORY COLLEGE.

Dr. Candler Submits a Memorial Statement and Resolutions—Bishop Hay-good's Tribute.

Oxford, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Seney memorial exercises were opened by singing hymn No. 364, followed by prayer led by Dr. Morgan Calloway. A lesson was then read from Acts, eight chapter, first and second verses. In behalf of the faculty Dr. William A. Candler then submitted the following memorial statement and resolutions:

statement and resolutions:

During the last half of the nineteenth century there has been a development of philanthrophy and benevolence in our country unprecedented in the history of mankind. Charitable, educational and religious institutions have been blessed by gifts running far up into the millions, and these gifts have come not from the bounty of princes extorted from the people, but from the honorable accumulations of uncrowned princes among us, who have established a nobler royalty than birth, by donations to bless the people.

Among those whose princely benevolence has been thus put forth no one has exhibited in his gifts greater wisdom, purer patriotism or more unselfab plety than the good man who passed away in New York last Friday night, and to honor whose memory we are assembled this hour—Mr. George I. Seney, the benefactor of this institution and the friend of all our people. In all his gifts, of which there is record (not to count the numberless private charities of a long and generous life), we have a graud total of nearly two millions of dollars; to Wesieyan unitversity, of Middletown, Count. $550,000; to the Home for Friendless Children in Brooklyn, $250,000; to the Brooklyn hospital, $500,000; to the Wesleyan Female college, Macon, Ga. $100,000; to Inc. Cobb institute, Athens, Ga., $100,000; to Inc. Co

In moving the adoption of these resolutions Mr. Chairman, I beg to make a few remarks, said Mr. Candler. it would be evidence, sir, of moral and social decay, if the good could perish from the earth, and we laid it not to heart. When the good Stephen died, despite the warm, ardent faith of the early church and its death-conquering hopes, devont men carried him to 'als burnal, and made great lamentation over him. It would be the mark of ian artitude in us today if we felt no sorrow, no cace that this good man has gone away from our country, and from us. We should in failing thus to lay to heart the bereavement which has come to the whole country, rob ourselves of the good impulses which his life has given. Dr. Candler Speaks.

sway from our country, and from us. We should in failing thus to lay to heart the bereavement which has come to the whole country, rob ourselves of the good impulses which his life has given.

By his death a city notab? life has closed. He began as the son of a Mothedist preaener; born in New York, May 12, 1823. He can e of good, honest stock, his ancestry reaching back to colonial times, and connected with the best families of those times. His grandfather was Joshua Senry, a delegate to the continental congress, and afterwards a member of the federal congress. Methodism entered early into many of these strong families, and from among them came Robert, the father of George I. Sency. He entered the Christian ministry, and became a leading Methodist preacher. Rev. Robert Sency was a graduate of Columbia college, and his son's education was begun at an early age, and was exceedingly thorough. In his boyhood, George attended school at White Plains, Westchester county, New York, and afterwards spent a short time at Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn., and was subsequently graduated from the University of New York, 1847. Thus thoroughly furnished, descended from good stock, honored in the religious and political history of our country, he entered well equipped and full of hope upon a career of commarce. He began in the Metropolitan bank, as the paying teller, and vemained with that institution until he came to be the president, managing as such the largest financial schemes connected with it. This kind of a career could hardly have been reached in any other country but our own. That a young man, the son of a preacher, with such revenues as grachers have, could become a commanding force in finance in so orief a time, is scarcely possible in any other land. And just because it is comparatively easy to do in our country if one has brains and energy, other things are equally easy. It is easy to become so absorbed in the making of money as to make it by fair or foul means, by pagan or Christian methods. It is easy to education, that it does not fit one for business. Mr. Henry Clews talked this way, and so does Mr. Carnegle; but this man agreed with the best business men of this country, with such men as Mr. Vanderbill for example, who, although himself an uneducated man, was wise enough to endow an institution that others migns have an education of which he did not have the benefit. With this idea of the value of collegiate culture Philip Armour, John Rockefeller and Leland Stanford are agreed. Hucksters and shopkepers are not to be blamed for not understanding such matters. Mr. Seney believed in Christianity and the culture of Christianity. His views were not narrow, but they were the broad views of a Christian scholar and stafesman. He disposed of his wealth as a statesman. In proof of this statement I call your attention to one of the main facts alluded to in the memorial paper just read—the fact that he gave large money for the education of the white people of the south. I do not mean to be understood as intimating that he was not interested in the colored people. It cannot be doubted that from time to time he assisted the board of his church which has in charge their great work on behalf of the negroes. But he saw that this country was one and if the white people were left imperfectly educated great evil would come to the entire country, and like Vanderbilt he gave largely to their education.

It would have been easy for a man in his position not to have seen such an opportunity, and easier still not to care for it if seen. We had been in antagonism to his section of the country, and our church had had many sharp conrtoversies with northern Methodism since 1844. If any people had been out of the circle of his sympathies, most naturally would have been us of the southern Methodism chared into sympathy with us, and did more for the higher education of our white people than any one man has lived who mastered to the real of the country—such a man has lived who mastered by it. A man has lived who mastered by it. A man has l in our country.

We do well today to join in service in honor of his memory, lamenting, not for him, but for ourselves that so great and good a man walks no more with us.

Bishop Haygood's Tribute.

I shall not attempt a eulogy upon Mr. Seney. It so happened that I knew him better than any of you, and by the providence of God was brought into relations with him that well to the providence of God was brought into relations with him that well to the providence of God was brought into relations with him that your president has said is true. Mr. Seney was in business a man of comprehensive intelligence, foresight, decision and honor. He gained a large fortune—not so great, he once told me as the newspapers attributed to him. After the crash of '84 his creditors showed in a very marked way how men trusted him. Some whom he had helped from poverty to wealth pressed him with the relentless rigor of the law, but others (more like himself) trusted him so fully as to give him opportunity in some measure to repair his broken fortunes, not making him a money power on the street or in the bank circles any more; but as I have been told by those who ought to know, leaving to his family an ample support.

Several times I saw him in his office or in his house. First and last I received from him more than one hundred letters. It was a grief to me last year that while visiting Los Angeles he called at my house when I was away from home, and so I lost the pleasure of seeing him.

I have often been asked how much Mr. Seney was worth. I do not know. I never so much as intimated a desire to know anything about his private business, not being afflicted with the curiosity that meddles with other people's affairs. Mr. Seney, wiser than many, while yet alive, and while hav conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, having been sent there as a delegate from the Methodist Episcopal church, south. We were harely introduced, more south. We were harely introduced, more shalling hands. On the Methodist Episcopal church, south. As the close of the service Dr. Callaway moved that I be requested to publish the discourse, and the congregation by a practically unanimous vote, so far as I know, seconded the motion. That discourse attracted some notice. About Christmas I received a letter from Dr. Hunt, of the American Bible Society, telling me if I would see to their distribution a friend of his in New York would see that 10,000 copies of it were printed in pamphlet form, and a check was sent to me to pay for the postage. I afterward learned that Mr. Sency was Dr. Hunt's felend, but I never mentioned the matter to him, nor he to me. In February, 1881, I had occasion to visit New York no business of my own. The day before leaving the city I saw Dr. Hunt al before in the Hill House, and he force in the chanced to mention that you were in the city. Mr. Sency said: "Tell him I would be glad to see him. If he ans time, tell him to call at my office." I did not know what Mr. Sency wanted with me. I had no suspicion of his purpose or intentions. After bank hours I called at his office. We had an interview which lasted perhaps ten minutes. I think I can give you the precise words. He said: "That was, I think sound doctrine you put in your sermon. How do your people-take it?" I answered. "Some of them approve of it; great many fisher me, and we are improving," "I want to give you he precise words. He said: "That was, I think sound for the mapprove of it; great many fisher me, and we are improving," "I want to give you had the college, he wall all words and we had a man of quick movement and ready speech when he had made up his mind. He was tian colleges and schools as the hope of our country.

In the third place, he was a patriot whose mind took in the whole country, and in so much as the papers have given one of his sentiments in such a way as to do him injustice, I undertake to give the correct version. I do not believe that any northern man ever found fault with Mr. Seney for these gifts. I know that leading papers praised him as a wise, far-seeing, and good man. I particularly remember that Dr. Buckley spoke in his paper in the highest terms of these gifts. It occurred in this way: I had preached Sunday morning at his church, in Brooklyn. It was Sunday afternoon. April 2d. We were talking about these matters, and he said, "I believe my friends here approve what I have done. But if any of them should ask me, 'why do you not give this money to your own people? "

Mr. Seney was a philanthropist. I think

But if any of them should ask me, 'why do you not give this money to your own people?' I will reply, 'they also are my people, we are one people.'"

Mr. Seney was a philanthropist. I think he had no keener regret than that he was unable to carry out his plans in regard to the Brooklyn hospital. He spoke to me once in regard to that enterprise of the suffering in the two great cities. He planned that hospital for suffering humanity. There was to be no exclusion on account of denomination, religion or race. The solitary condition was human need.

When the telegram reached Georgia in February, 1881, that George I Seney had given $10,000 to Emory college, our people were stunned with delight. At first they could not believe it true, and to show you what an impression this gift made. I may refer to an incident almost ludicrous. On March 31st I sent a telegram to Dr. Bass, saying that Mr. Seney had given $50,000 to the Wesleyan, and the telegram reaching him on the 1st of April. he thought somebody had forged my name and was trying to hoax him, nor did he believe it until I sent him a telegram from a place near the Georgia line stating that I wished to meet his executive board in his office to deliver the gift. Those who were not connected with the faculty of Emory college at the time casmot understand the excitement that followed the announcement of Mr. Seney's gift to the college here. Such a thing had never occurred in the history of Emory college at the time casmot understand the excitement stat followed the announcement of Mr. Seney's gift to the college here. Such a thing had never occurred in the history of Emory college that any man had given so much as $10,000. and they were more astonished that it came from a stranger, and from a section of the country in which we had supposed we had no friends. This sunburst from the heart of a stranger, a New Yorker and a republican, went far to melt the ice of sectional antagonism.

I close this humble tribute to Mr. Seney builds up; hatred destroys, love creates.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS AND FORECAST.

An extensive storm area moved east from the Rocky mountain region yesterday and last night covered the whole country between the Rockies and the Mississippi with its center over South Dakota, where at Huron the barometer was reading but a little over twenty-nine inches high at 7 o'clock. Scattering rains were reported west of the Mississippi yesterday, some of which were quite heavy, over an inch at both Huron and Kansas City. Scattered rains also fell east of the Mississippi as far as Cincinnati. In the latter city the rainfall during the twelve hours ending at 7 o'clock last night was over an inch and a quarter.

7 o'clock last night was over an inch and a quarter.

Warm weather prevailed yesterday in all southern and western states. In the west as far north as the states of Missouri and Nebraska temperatures generally averaged a trifle higher than those in north Georgia. The coolest portion of the country for the latitude was along the Atlantic coast.

The outlook for today is that unsettled and showery weather will probably prevail in the Mississippi valley and also over a greater portion of the states farther east.

For Georgia today: Unsettled and favorable for local showers; little change in temperature.

Col- H. Franklin Starke Speaks of the Benefits Received from the Cope-land Treatment.

In the series of statements from men well known in business and financial circles who have testified from their personal experience as to the uniform success of the Copeland treatment is cited this week the statement of Colonel H. Franklin Starke, the well-known business man and real estate dealer, who has his office in the Equitable building and resides at 400 Gordon street, West End. Probably no business man is more widely known than Colonel Starke. He says: "I make the following statement of my own free will. I was for a number of years afflicted with what is called catarrh of the head and throat. During the month of February I placed myself under the care of the Copeland physicians and the result has been phenomenal. I am now free from these unpleasant symptoms, and I say that I have found these physicians courteous in manner and thorough in their work. I believe them to be thoroughly reliable and skilled in their profession and I heartily endorse them. "COLONEL H. FRANKLIN STARKE." tily endorse them. "COLONEL H. FRANKLIN STARKE."

INSIPIENT CONSUMPTION.

That neglected catarrh will result in consumption in many cases has been abundantly demonstrated from the testimony of patients who have been cured of the first disease and had the second arrested in time by Drs. Copeland, Porter and Milholland. These statements have each week appeared in the columns of this paper, and to them now is added below the story of Mrs. Lizzie Hays, wife of C. F. Hays, the prominent and well-known stock dealer, whose place of business is 167 Decatur street, this city. The statement of Mrs. Hays is indeed an interesting one, who lives at 43 Martin street. Mrs. Hays says: . "For over a year I had been a great sufferer. My disease was contracted through colds and exposure that resulted in grip. While it appeared first in my head and throat, it soon fastened on my lungs and stomach and involved my entire system, with a wretched cough.

MISS LIZZIE HAYS, 43 Martin Street.

"My head and nose were choked full all the time. I had terrible frontal pains over my eyes; my throat was dry and sore and my cough was racking and irritating. The disease became so bad that my sense of smell and taste was entirely destroyed and my hearing seriously impaired and my stomach became involved. I lost my appetite. I had to force myself to eat anything, and then suffered from it. I could not exert myself at all in any way. We tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicines, receiving nothing but temporary relief until I placed myself under the treatment of Drs. Copeland, Porter and Milholland. They have restored me and I have regained my health and strength. The lung symptoms have entirely disappeared and I cannot say how much pleased I am with their system of treatment and its results. I willingly and earnestly recommend them to all." MISS LIZZIE HAYS, 43 Martin Street.

Another Era of Good Feeling The first administration of President

Monroe covered that remarkable period in our political history commonly known as "the era of good feeling." In many respects it was a notable phase of American politics. At the end of President Madison's term the federalists were still strong and aggressive, and the democrats were hampered by their bitter factional divis-The democratic members of congress did not nominate Monroe without having to contend with powerful opposition. William H. Crawford, of Georgia, received fifty-four votes against sixty-five for the successful candidate. Many democrats opposed Virginia's alleged domination. Aaron Burr denounced Monroe as an improper and incompetent candidate, and persuaded nineteen democrats to stay out of the caucus.

President Monroe's inaugural address outlined a policy so liberal, progressive and thoroughly American that party differences subsided, and the factions in the democratic party harmonized, and good feeling reigned in every quarter. The president made a tour of the states, and was warmly greeted by delegations made up of all shades of opinion. He selected able and distinguished men for his cabinet. and all the officials of his administration joined him in the effort to soften the political asperities of the time. To allay factions in his own party he selected his rival, Crawford, for the treasury, and endeavored to draw the federalists into the ranks of the democracy. So successful was this policy, that for four years we had a happy country, and the continuous love feast of the democracy proved so alluring that Monroe's second election was accomplished without a contest, the remnant of the federalists making no nomination.

President Cleveland's administration is in a position to dictate the future of parties. It can repeat the historic era of good feeling by adopting to a judiclous extent the methods of Monroe. The republicans have lost their grip, and a reunited, harmonious democracy, devoid of factional spirit, and faithfully redeeming the pledges in its platform will practically give us one party, one people and one policy.

If the administration will draw the democratic factions together, doing nothing that will encourage existing differences of opinion, and energetically push the work of tariff and financial reform promised in our platform, we shall enter even a brighter era of good feeling than Monroe saw during his first term. The shattered republican party can never rally against the united democracy, and neither the republicans nor the populists will be able to formulate a popular platform that will command a following if we keep our promises of reform.

The people earnestly hope for the return of general prosperity and progress. They will give their hearty support to the administration and the party that will secure these blessings. All that we have to do is to keep in the middle of the big road, and honestly and faithfully redeem our pledges. But a different programme will bring trouble and perhaps disaster. The encouragement of one faction will perpetuate party differences, and the failure to stand by any of our promised reforms will anger many of our friends and strengthen the opposition. Shall we work for peace, harmony and prosperity, or shall we precipitate an era of turmoil and bitterness upon the

and factions, dividing races, communi-ties and families, and giving up everyhing to confusion and discord?

The Common Law Wife Again. Our recent editorial on that growing nuisance, the common law wife in New York, brings two of our lawyer readers to the front with the statement that a common law marriage holds good in Georgia. That is, a mutual agree ment to be husband and wife, followed by living together in that relation, is a valid marriage, without any license, ceremony, or preacher or official. Fortunately, we have had very little trouble in our state growing out of these unconventional marriages, because our people very generally desire to have the sanction of the law and the church expressed in some public manner when they marry. But with the growth of population and the importation of new ideas, the common law wife may become more prominent, and it might be well to head her off before she gets a good start.

Chandler Jumps Up. The biggest burlesque of the season is the spectacle of little Mr. Billy Chandler, the author and champion of the Florida election frauds of 1876, rising in the senate and offering a resolution directing a committee to inquire into a statement derogatory to Senator Power, of Montana.

Some accommodating senator ought now to introduce a resolution of inquiry into the political career of little Mr. Billy Chandler. The investigating committee would have a breezy time, and they would be able to uncover a remarkable record of political rascality. Chandler is little, but he's lively.

The People Want the News. 'A' communication from an old sub scriber, signing himself "Reader," in another column, very clearly defines the mission of a democratic newspaper, as fair-minded and thoughtful persons understand it.

We have no hesitation in saying that "Reader" voices the real sentiment of an intelligent public. Our subscribers expect to find the news in our news columns, and they look for appropriate comment on the editorial page.

No policy could be more shortsighted than the publication of one side of a controversy and the suppression of the other. The democrats of Georgia and of the country would never have friumphed in the recent campaign if they had not received full information regarding the plans and the movements of the opposition. If it is the proper thing for a democratic newspaper to leave its readers completely in the dark as to the schemes and the actions of the republicans and the populists, then it follows that it would be good democratic journalism to report only one side of the debates in congress, and leave democrats under the impression that there is no necessity for vigilance. organization and work on their side of the house.

We propose to give the news, and say what we please about it in our editorial columns. When our opponents say or do anything that democrats ought to know for their own protection and guidance, we shall report it. Any other way of conducting a newspaper should be resented by all intelligent readers.

Mr. Watterson on Silver.

We had occasion yesterday to call attention to and endorse some remarks made by Editor Watterson relative to the reform of the tariff. Today we have to call attention to some remarks made by Editor Watterson relative to the silver question, and to remind him f his own patriotic record in urging in season and out of season the prompt remonetization of the white metal.

For ten years Editor Watterson has been hammering away in behalf of the coinage of silver, and for a good part of that time hardly a day passed that he did not discuss the question. He has devoted literally hundreds of columns to the subject, and in the files of his paper, from 1878 to 1888, and perhaps later, is to be found a complete answer to any conceivable argument that the gold sharks and money lenders could invent, or to any weaker view of the question that Editor Watterson could himself present.

As a matter of fact, The Courier-Journal was for years, under Mr. Watterson's management, the leading advocate of the free coinage of silver, and treated the subject with a degree of comprehension and earnestness that attracted attention all over the country.

We observe in a recent issue of Mr. Watterson's paper that there is a tendency to tone down if not withdraw from the firm attitude it has occupied on the silver question. We have observed, too, that Mr. Watterson himself, by way of relaxation, has been paying more attention to the lecture platform than to the political discussions of the day, and this fact may in part account for the apparent tendency on the part of the paper to desert the impregnable position which it holds as the champion of free coinage. It may account for such remarks as these which we find in a recent editorial article on the silver question: Manifestly, if we are to enlarge to any ex-tent our international commerce, we must do it upon an international basis; otherwise the vorld will soon draw from us our entire stock world will soon draw from us our entire stock of gold, and will ship in return only silver or overvalued goods priced in silver.

It becomes of first importance that the democratic party, in dealing with this silver question, should consider it in its broadest dassect, in its relation to the production and exchange of American crops and American goods. It is not simply a national question; it is a question which lies at the bottom of interuestion which lies at the bottom of inter-ational commerce.

If the author of the foregoing will turn to the files of The Courier-Journal he will have no difficulty in discovering that our own domestic prosperity is vastly more important than any possible enlargement of our international commerce, especially under present conditions, when our farmers are compelled to compete with Indian cotton and wheat, receiving pay for these products in the depreciated silver standard, while they have to pay their debts n gold. The Courier-Journal is right when it says that the democratic party should consider the silver question in its broadest aspect, but its broadest aspect is that which concerns most intimately the people who see their debts enlarged and the values of their products decreased by the constantly appreciating gold standard. The broadest aspect of the silver question is that which relates to the pocket interests of the American people. The international aspect is essentially narrow, and it is out of the power of the democratic party to deal with it successfully. All efforts in that direction at this time are bound to be frustrated by the foreign Shylocks who are in active partnership with the Shylocks of the north and east. They will not surrender the profits that accrue to them from the constantly appreciating single gold standard, and there is no reasonable hope of an international agreement.

Under only one contingency is there any possibility of an international agreement, and that is for the United States to enter upon free coinage and demonstrate that this government is able to restore silver to its old place in the currency. When this is done France and the countries forming the Latin union would lose no time in opening their mints to the free coinage of silver. We know the Shylock argument by "Gold would disappear! It heart. would go abroad." We have been listening to these predictions ever since the Bland-Allison act was up for discussion, and not one of them has ever been fulfilled-not one.

Suppose gold does go abroad; will it be given away? It will leave its full equivalent behind in some more useful shape. There is more gold in this country today than there has ever been before, but what good is it doing? It is not in circulation; it is hoarded in the nation's treasury, and in the vaults of the banks and trust companies.

We advise The Courier-Journal writer to turn to his files for light on this question. He will find a flood of it there.

Offices and Office-Holding.

The McDuffle Journal has a well considered article on the evils of officeseeking, in which it advises young men to stay at home. This advice is in the main correct, and it is in line with the suggestions made by The Constitution. Almost any young man with talent and ambition can do better in Georgia than he can in one of the departments at Washington. The routine is blighting and paralyzing, and the young man's career is ended the moment it is begun. We think, however, that our contemporary pushes its objections to office-holding too far. It says: Let the republicans keep the offices—let mybody have them—let Old Nick have them; out for the Lord's sake let us not spoil our oung men with them-our young men , who e the hope of the country ing up slowly by integrity and honest endeavor to make a place and a name for themselves in the world.

The truth is, the offices must be held by somebody, and to turn them over to the republicans would be to wreck the country. Congressmen must hold office in order to represent the people, and it would hardly be proper at this time to permit republicans to fill these representative offices.

Office-holding is an evil beyond a doubt, but it is more of an evil when the republican party engages in it, and it is for that reason we desire to see all the offices under a democratic administration filled by democrats. It is for that reason, too, that we desire to see the state of Georgia enjoying its proportionate share of the federal pat-

However much we may inveigh against office-holding as a profession, we cannot close our eyes to the fact that Georgia has rights in the matter that ought not to be ignored. We preume no one will deny that the state is entitled to a representation in congress in proportion to its population. It is a right that asserts itself. Thus far we have found no one to deny that Georgia is entitled, on the same basis. to its proportionate share of federal patronage. This is another right that asserts itself in spite of the fact that it has been nullified in the interests of republican partisanship. As a question of abstract morals, the discussion of office-seeking and office is interesting and perhaps profitable, but we are equally interested in the practical right of Georgia to have its just and equal proportion of the federal patronage, just as it has its equalrepresentation in congress. Let the evil that now exists be remedied and then we may discuss the question whether the offices should be filled by Georgia democrats or Georgia republicans.

This, is the way The Milledgeville Union-Recorder views it:

Common Law Marriages. Editor Constitution-I read with much interest your editorial in this morning's Con-in 34 Ga. 440, in the case of Smith versus Smith, common law marriages are now of force in Georgia, and have always been except during a period of less than one year, ending with the passage of the act of December 14, 1863 (pamp. p. 48) by which the common law as to informal marriages was restored and reinstated in Georgia.

That the evils attendant upon the operation of this law in New York do not prevail in Georgia is due doubtless to an innate reversnee. Georgia is due doubtless to an innate reverence for the sanctity of the martial relation im-planted in the natures of our people, rather than "to the check of human law to hand the Yours truly, JAMES A. Savannah, Ga., April 11.-(Special.)-tlanta defeated Savannah today in a ell contested game, by a score of 7 to 6. The day was raw and very much against od ball playing, as the error column will Savannah's errors were more costly than those of Atlanta. Atlanta's victory was argely due to a wild throw by Nichols from nter to eatch a runner at third. The ball olled under the bleechers and three runs sulted. Savannah scored four in the first en a se on balls, a double, a triple and three Atlanta went them one better in alf, scoring five on two bases on balls, singles, and four errors. Savannah tied the score in the second on we hits, a steal and an error.

No more runs were scored till the seventh, en Atlanta forged ahead with two ned runs, on a single by Motz, a sacrice by Letcher, a hit and steal by Lally singles by Conners and Murray. Savannah scored again in the eighth on base on balls to Cross, a steal, a sacriice and a single.

The features of the game were the batery work of Dewald and Murphy, Motz's batting, Connaughton's fielding and Cross's ase running.

There was considerable wrangling over Impire Foster's decisions, some of them being very rank, the home team suffering most at his hands. He was badly off on balls and strikes, both puchers suffering about equally in that respect.

There was about three thousand spectaors, and the audience was about equally ivided. The good plays of both teams rere cheered. Excitement was at fevereat throughout the game. After the fatal irst inning, Atlanta's hits were bunched, those of the home team were scat-

Both pitchers were inclined to wildness in the early innings but soon settled cown and did good work, Petty's work in the fourth being especially fine.

How the Runs Were Made.

Manning got his base on balls and scored McGarr's three-bagger to left field. sman struck out and Burns popped a up to Camp, who muffed it, Burns going second base. Connaughton hit to Camp, de Camp again nuffed, letting Burns ore. Then Cross hit a ball past Ely and it, Connaughton scored. Cross was caught trying to steal second and Hurley struck out.

Camp got his base on balls and so did Ely. Then Motz gave up a nice three-bagger, and the center fielder threw wild to third and all three men trotted in. Letcher went out to right fielder and Lally was retired at first by a pretty assist from third. Connor hit by the shortstop and moved along to first in nice style, and was advanced to second by Cross's muff of Murray's ball, by which Murray was given first. Murray saw a good mark in the same place and drove the ball at Cross, who threw wild to first. This filled the bases. Dewald fattened his batting average by sending a beauty to left, and on the hit, Conners and Murray scored, but Dewald was caught trying to steal second.

Savannah made the score even in the second by sending McGarr across the plate. Petty opened the inning by striking out and Manuing produced a hit to left. McGarr got his first by Ely's bad throw to Motz. Both Manning and McGarr were advanced a base by Murphy dropping a ball. Klusman hit to Camp and Manning tried to run home, but was thrown out at the plate, McGarr going. to second on the play. Burna's hit to right scored McGarr and Connaughton went out at tirst.

Nothing more was done until the seventh inning when Atlanta added two more to her runs.

In Atlanta's half of the seventh, after her runs.

In Atlanta's half of the seventh, after Ely had gone out at first, Motz got in a safe hit. Then Letcher went out at first and Lally came to the bat. He drove the ball for a good clean.one and went to first, advancing Motz to second. Conners got a beauty and both Motz and Lally scored.

That made Atlanta seven and it ended her run setting.

That made Atlanta seven and it ended her run getting.

In the eighth, Nichol struck out and Crots got his base on balls and store second. Hurley went out at first, Cross scoring. Petty beat the ball out but was forced out at second by Manning.

Rettger and Dixon, and Jameson and Hurley will probably be the batteries for tomorrow's game.

The score tells the rest:

Augusta Still Crows.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Augusta boys are still crowing. Their club detailed Macon again this afternoon by a wore of 11 to 5. Macon committed numerous aexcusable errors, and there is no need of onger denying the fact that the people of this city are disappointed with their club. The city are disappointed with their club. The macon can play winning bail. Hese is Macon can play winning bail. Hese is Macon's best player. He did practically all of Macon's field work today. If caught a beautiful game.

The Augustans experienced no trouble in batting Miller. When Gillen, of the home team, scored a run in the first the hopes of the Macons ran high, and they thought victory was theirs; but when the home team went to the field and by gross errors permitted Augusta to score two runs every one felt that the game would be Augusta's. Macon was goose-egged in the second inning, but Augusta made five runs. Shaw, of the Augusta made a light grounder in this linning, which Macon's first baseman and right fielder allowed to pass them, and three men scored.

The prettlest catch of the game was made by Everett, of Augusta, on a running fly in left field. He was loads cheered by the grand stand on this really brilliant play. In the eighth inning Boland, of Macon, made a beautiful three base hit. At the first half of the sixth linning a heavy rain commenced to fall and the game had to be suspended about twenty minutes.

Score by innings:

Charleston, S. C., April 11.—(Special.)— Charleston again beat Chattanooga today 6 to 3. The attendance was large in spite of a cold blustering spell of weather, which swept down upon the city this morning. The game was characterized by a series of brilliant plays, and for four innings neither side scored. In the fifth the locals got a cinch on Menefee's curves and rapped him for four runs, virtually winning the game. Chattanooga got in three runs in the seventh, but was unable to catch up. The members of the Mobile, Ala., April 11.—(Special.)—Doran, for New Orleans, kept Mobile guessing all during the game, and when a hit was needed it was not forthcoming. Gragg, for Mobile, pitched a good article of ball himself, but the hits came opportunely and brought in the runs. In the last inning Mobile had three men on bases with none out, but stupid base running lost the game. No particularly brilliant plays were made. Attendance 1,000.

Memphis. Tenn., April 11.—(Special.)—The attendance today equaled that of yesterday and numbered about 1,800. Nashville again led off and made two runs in the first inning, but the locals overtook them in the third and led by one run. The score was tied in the fifth inning, but Memphis forged to the front in the seventh and won the game in the eighth by adding three more runs.

The features of the game were the heavy batting of both clubs, the one-handed catch of a hot liner by Behene, of the locals, in the fourth inning, by which a double play was made, and the splendid fielding of a long hit to center field by Miller, of Nashville, who threw it in and caught Bolan at third.

and besides enjoying it as was evident, those present had the pleasure of seeing the returns from the Atlanta-Savannah game posted on the board.

The Pittsburgers showed up in fine shape and worked like they had been in harness a whole season. Every member of the team is in the best condition and goes about his work with an ease and grace that catch the crowd. The outfield, composed of Van Haltren, Smith and Donavan is one of the fastest and best seen in the south in years. Each of the trio is a fine, hard hitter, too, and a quick base runner. The infield is hard to pass. Beckley is one of the best, quickest and surest first basemen in the National League and plays the game with a vim rarely seen. Bierbauer at second is as good as he ever was, while Denny Lyons, Atlanta's old player, put up a faultless game. Shugart at short is a dandy and it will take a mighty good shortstop to turn him down.

Anson presented Hutchison and Kittridge, while the Pittsburgs had Baldwin and Miller in the points. The game from start to finish was was one of the best and most interesting of the spring and was highly enjoyed by those who were out.

To Set Aside a Will. San Francisco, April 11.—A contest to set aside the will of the late Dr. Washington Ryer, who died in June last, leaving an estate valued at $1,500,000, has been commenced in the interest of Christopher Ryer, who claims to be a natural son. GRANT-INMAN.

A Brilliant Marriage at the First Presbyterian Last Night.

A DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION AFTERWARD.

It Was a Notable Event in the Social Life of Atlanta-Other Society News of General Interest.

The First Presbyterian church was the scene last evening of a wedding whose brilliancy has never been excelled in the fashionable society of the south.

The wedding of Mr. John William Grant and Mss Annie Inman had long been looked forward to by fashionable people as the great social event of the spring season and those who went to the church and to the reception that followed, found that the reality of this high ceremonial exceeded their brightest anticipations.

The decorations at the church were sumptuously elegant. The flowers used were all pink and roses were the blossoms that formed clusters of pink loveliness against the bank of beautiful greenery about the altar. Countless white tapers were used in tall silver candlesticks and on either side of the pulpit were the pedestals which held large ornamented baskets tied with pink ribbons and filled with superb pink roses.

The wedding party entered to the strain of Mendelssohn played with masterful ex-pression by Mr. Price. The ushers came first, entering as follows: Mr. St. Julian Ravenel and Mr. John

Daniel. The bridesmaids entered in the following order:

Miss Emily English and Miss Lucy In-man, of New York. Miss Addie Maude and Miss Belle Newman.
Miss Lollie Hammond and Miss Iza

Glenn.
Miss Josephine Inman, the maid of honor

Miss Josephine Inman, the maid of honor, came down the aisle alone.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Mr. Hugh Inman, and was met by the groom at the altar with his best man, Mr. Peter Grant.

The ceremony was performed with impressive eloquence by Dr. Barnett.

Miss Inman was incomparably lovely in her wedding robes, for the shimmering white of her gown and the misty purity of her veil brought out to perfection the the marvelous beauty of her rose and lily complexion and the gold glory of her exquisite hair. Her frock was of white duchesse satin brocaded in a design of clematistied with love knots. The shirt was made perfectly plain with a train which fell from the waist in deep, graceful folds. The bodice was an entirely new and lovely creation of the modiste art. It was made round with a deep folded belt of the satin and the front was formed of slashes of the satin ornamented with pearl and silver heading and elternating with point lace inand the front was formed of slasnes of the satin ornamented with pearl and silver beading and alternating with point lace in-sertion. A fall of this costly lace orna-mented the round cut neck, fell over the big, puffed sleeves and was caught over the bust with a knot of orange blossoms and a dazzling diamond ornament in the form of a surely of carrations which was and a dazzling diamond ornament in the form of a spray of carnations, which was the gift of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Grant. The gorgeous diamond dagger which confined her veil was the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was of rare white orchids, from which many blossoms, tied with white baby ribbous, fell shower-like in fluttering profusion.

Miss Josephine Inman's gown was of white organdie, made with a round baby waist, finished with love knofs of baby ribbon and a deep fluted frill of Valenciennes waist, finished with love knots of baby ribbon and a deep fluted frill of Valenciannes lace. The big sleeves were of white satin and the full organdie skirt had a narrow lace-edged frill about the bettom and was trimmed up to the knees with bands of lace insertion. The pretty young maid of honor carried a big bouquet of white roses and the gown and the flowers were most harmonious with her delicate and quaint loveliness.

The attendants formed a half-circle about the altar, and when the ceremony about the altar, and when the ceremony was concluded marched out to Tanhauser. An elegant reception at the home of the bride followed the church ceremonial.

Mr. Hugh Inman's home on Peachtree is one of the most elegant and beautiful mansions imaginable for entertaining, and on this occasion everything that perfect taste and unlimited wealth could accomplish was done to enhance the beauty of the superb rooms and corridors. The colonnades were all enclosed and ornamented with serpen-tine vines and flowers. The hallways and corridors were arrayed with beautiful palms and ferrs tine vines and flowers. The hallways and corridors were arrayed with beautiful palms and ferns.

The Louis Fourteenth drawing room on the right where the effects of white and gold woodwork and dainty brocaded hangings is so lovely by gaslight, was the place chosen for the bride and groom to receive their congratulations. They stood in a white archway beneath an umbrella formed of ferns and white carnations. Pink roses and pots of maiden-hair fern were used to charming advantage in this elegant room, and the handsome dining room beyond was decorated with many roses and rare tropical plants. The table was a mass of pink roses, and the handsome side boards and mantles were arranged with ferns and flowers, while many tapers lent their soft radiance to the scene.

Mrs. Hugh Inman looked wonderfully young and lovely in elegant black satin toilet brocaded in a honeysuckle design and having a front of white and silver brocade. The gown was made a la princesse with wide revers over which fell black point lace, with big sleeves of black satin. Her ornaments were splendid diamonds.

Passing from this room the side balcony was reached. Here supper was served upon the two long tables which were gracefully adorned with flowers and trailing vines. Branches of dogwood and crabapple blossoms adorned the walls and the scene was delightfully fresh and inviting, while the dedictions.

The room on the left side of the hallway blossoms adorned the walls and the scene was delightfully fresh and inviting, while the refreshments were very elaborate and delicious.

The room on the left side of the hallway leading into the library, was arranged for the supper of the wedding party. The immense round table had for its center decoration a wheel of fortune formed of lilies of the valley, and the silver and cutglass table appointments were superb. Everything in this room was white and green. The chandeliers were twined with mist fern and loops of this vine were extended to the green vine traceries which intertwined with tulle garlands, formed a deep frieze around the walls. The bride's cake was iced in a design of roses and a great deal of fun arose from the cutting thereof.

In the large, handsome library, the presents were displayed and they were surprisingly magnificent. The gifts in cut-glass and silver, contained everything that the most luxurious nature could desire. Among the gifts from the families of the bride and groom, was a complete set of table silver and a silver tea service. The Cotillon Club sent an elegant salad bowl and service artistically engraved with the word cotillion, as a remembrance to the couple from the club of which Mr. Grant has been the efficient and popular president. All the remembrances were indeed exquisite and in the most perfect taste.

At 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. John Grant bade adden to their friends and departed amid a shower of rice and congraculations. They went to New York, where they will remain about ten days, and then snil fx Europe to be gone about a year.

Miss Inman is the oldest daughter of Mr. Hugh Inman, one of the wealthiest sud most prominent men in Georgia. She has received every advantage of cultivation and longs to a bright and ambittous girl. Her nature is a beautiful and womanly one, and she was the rare, setadfast practical sense which has kept her sweet and unspoiled by the favors of fortune. She is a remarkably lovely girl with that dazzling sort of blonde beauty, which will remain fresh and fair for many years.

beauty, which will remain fresh and fair for many years.

The name of Mr. John Grant has been one associated for several years with notable southern society. Mr. Grant has been a social leader in Atlanta, and is unusually liked. He has the most pleasing manners and in personal appearance, intellect and position, has every right to the kind social leadership he has attained. He is wealthy in his own right, and will be the heir to vast estates. He is the only son of Captain W. D. Grant.

The marriage is a perfectly harmonious and beautiful one.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant, upon their rettin, will occupy their new home which is low being erected upon half of the grounds which is rounded Mrs. Martha Grant's mansion of Peachtree.

The elegant decorations at the church for the Grant-Imman wedding were arranged by Mrs. Dr. Carpenter.

Miss Mary Burr, quite a beautiful and accomplished young lady of Griffin, who has been spending the past two weeks very pleasantly with Miss Maud Leak, at her palatial home, 241 Peachtree, has returned home. Don't Forget. That Mrs. Curtis, of New York, will be at the Kumball Monday, the 17th, with dress novelties, children's hats, etc., and will take on als and measures for summer ward-robes. COLONEL W. P. ORME DEAD.

A NEW LAND COMPANY.

The Advantages of the South Will Be Thoroughly Advertised Over the Country. A large company in which substantial business men of this city and Macon are in-terested has been established to secure immigration to the south in general, and Georgia in particular. The Constitution has been agitating this idea editorially for some time, and the good work these gentlemen are about to enter upon shows that the agitation has had a good result. The company will advertise the section between Atlanta and Valdosta all over the country and especially at the world's fair. The object of the company, which has purchased a lot of land in the best section of the state, is to sell lots or farms. These farms will be disposed of in three ways, but all under the same conditions. The condi-tions are that the buyer pays one-fourth cash, and the rest in the third, fourth and fifth years.

The farms will be sold outright or will be sold with four-tenths planted in different fruit trees or the entire property in fruit. In indifferent fruit trees or the entire property in fruit. In instances where there are no fruit trees on the property the company plants and takes care of them for three years. The planting of more fruit trees will necessarily lead to the establishment of canning factories, packing houses, crate factories and wineries, all of which will be valuable.

The projectors of the new company are of the idea that it will not be long before cotton will not be the "king"

the idea that it will not be long before cotton will not be the "king" much longer, so diversified fruit farms will be essential to the welfare of the southern farmer. The amount of the capital stock paid in will be $60,000, divided into shares of $100 each. The company has the right to increase the stock to $500,000.

There will be two offices, one in Macon and the other in Atlanta. The company has made application for a charter. The following named gentlemen will be interested in the company:

DON'T FORGET THAT LECTURE

Tomorrow Night for the Benefit of Wesley Methodist Chapel.

There will surely be a crowd to hear Rev. Sam Small's celebrated lecture, "From Farroom to Pulpit," tomorrow evening at the Marietta street church. The tickets will be on sale at various stores today and reserved seats at Miller's news depot. The proceeds go to help pay the remaining building debt on Wesley chapel.

SHORT POLICE ITEMS.

Johnnie Birdine, fourteen years old, of 70 South Boulevard, has run away from Jud Craig and John Stephens, two negroes from Cartersville, have been placed in the Fulton county jail, charged with robbing the postoffice at Taylorsville.

Ed Williams, the sixth member of the gang that robbed the freight car at the Belt junction, has been arrested.

ball house authorities and was absolutely without cause or provocation.

He had always conducted himself honorably and was a man who had a jealous care for both his character and his reputation. He had been grossly outraged and thought he was justly entitled to the amount for which he sued.

Mr. R. J. Bates. of Batesville. Prostrated from Apoplexy and Dies.

A PROMINENT GEORGIAN'S TRAGIC END.

He Had Two Sons in Atlanta-Stricken Within One Block of the Hospital, He Died There Last Night.

Mr. Russell J. Bates, a prominent and prosperous citizen of Batesville, Cherokee county, was seized with paralysis on Jenkins street within one block of the Grady hospital yesterday morning, was carried to that institution where he died last night at 8:30 o'clock without having spoken a word.

Mr. Bates came to the city yesterday morning on business. He is well known here, having become so during his frequent visits to the city on business and to see his relatives. He has two sons in business in Atlanta, one of them being connected with the firm of Gramling & Nisbet. Both are excellent young business men of fine standing and prospects.

Mr. Bates reached the city in good health and spirits and no shadow of the tragedy portending, cast itself before him. He met his friends with his usual cheerful manner, and never appeared in finer spicets. He attended to several matters of business that had brought him to the city. He displayed his usual tact and judgment in transacting the matters of business that occupied him during the morning, and to no one with whom he talked was torre visible a single sign of the frightful shock freighted with its terrible consequence of death so near at hand, visible,

During the toreneon he went out into the eastern portion of the city to attend to a matter of business. It e stopped in at a residence on Jenkins street, and had been there but a few moments when he collapsed and dropped to the floor n a paroxysm of pain. His face was purple, and his eyes protruding.

A physician was quickly telephoned for, and before one arrived it was decided to send him to the Grady hospital, just a block away. The ambulance was telephoned for and in a few minutes Mr. Bates was gnder the care of the house staff at the hos-pital. It was qaickly seen by the physicians that he had extracted that he had sustained a severe shock, necessarily fatal in its results. However, he was given every care and attention possible, and efforts were made to ward off the foe that the trained eye of the physicians told them was near.

His two sons were sent for and qu'ckly came, remaining with their father throughout the afternoon and until his death. Mr. Bates never once spoke after receiving the shock. He remained in an unconscious condition until death came. He slied at 8:30 o'clock. A stroke of paralysis or apoplexy had ended his life the physicians said. His body was removed to l'atterson's undertaking establishment to be prepared for burial. It will be taken to Batesville for burial today.

ROBBED ON A TRAIN.

Chloroformed Under the Union Depot and His Pockets Rifled.

Night before last Mr. William H. Morrow, of Ingleside, a little station on the outskirts of the city on the Georgia road, boarded the late train on that road to go out to his home, as he does every night. It was warm and he raised the window. It was late and he laid back on his seat and began to doze.

began to doze. He awoke perhaps half an hour later, just as the train was pulling out of the depot and reised himself to a sitting posture. He felt dizzy and the fumes of chioroform confused his senses. He was almost stifled and turned to the window and noticed that it was not only down, but the blinds, too had been drawn.

that it was not only down, but the blinds, too, had been drawn.

Thoroughly puzzled, and by this time thoroughly awakened, Mr. Morrow suspected that something wrong had occurred during his short nap of perhaps half an hour. He felt in his pocket and to his consternation found that his valuable gold watch, among other valuables, was missing. The chain dangled from his watch pocket, just as it had been left by the thief, who had detached the timepiece from it. Fortunately Mr. Morrow had but little changa in his pocket and the bold thief did not enrich himself to any great extent as regards ready cash. any great extent as regards ready cash. He, however, carried off a fine double-case gold watch, of considerable value, and some other articles of less value which Mr. Morother articles of less value which Mr. Morrow had in his pockets at the time.

It was fifteen minutes past 11 o'clock at night when Mr. Morrow discovered that he had been robbed, and the train on which he was going to his home was pulling out of the depot at the time and he could not report his loss and strange experience to the police. He continued on his journey homeward and called at police headquarters yesterday and made his loss known to the nolice department.

Mr. Morrow says there were but three persons in the coach in which he was robbed and they were reclining on their seats.

persons in the coach in which he was robbed and they were reclining on their seats with their eyes closed sleepily. One of them, a Mr. Poole, of Conyers, says that a man came in a few minutes after Mr. Morrow and sat down on the seat immediately in the rear of that gentleman. Mr. Poole did not remember seeing the man leave the coach. He gave a slight description of the man who is supposed to be the robber, and Mr. Morrow yesterday gave that description to the police department.

Mr. Morrow says the robbery would have been impossible without the use of chloroform, which drug he distinctly detected by the smell, as he waked up, as he is a very light sleeper. He believes that only a small quantity of the drug was administered to him. The daring thief took the precaution to draw down the window and window blinds before perpetrating his bold robbery to prevent his being seen from the outside. It was easy to do as the three occupants of the coach at the time were in a semi-doze.

A SUIT AGAINST THE KIMBALL.

The Arrest of T. B. Bethen Leads to an Action at Law.

A suit for $5,000 was filed in the clerk's office yesterday by T. B. Bethea, through his attorney, Mr. F. L. Haralson, which is out of the usual run and will be read with considerable interest.

The plaintiff claims that he was arrested on the charge of gaming and carried to the police headquarters, where he was searched by the officers. Nothing was found on his person to substantiate the charges which were brought against his character.

He claims that a vote was taken as to whether or not he should be incarcerated and after the result of the battle was declared he was given his liberty. The arrest was made at the instance of the Kimball house authorities and was absolutely without cause or provocation.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, April 11.-While the stock NEW YORK, April 11.—While the stock market enjoyed periods of strength today, the tendency of prices in the main was downward, especially during the last hour of business. The heavy shipments of gold, $3,500,000, by today's steamers, revived discussion as to the treasury gold reserve and the monetary outlook also came in for a share of attention, the bears being bold in their predictions that $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 additional gold will go forward by the steamers sailing later in the week. The firmness of the exchange market and the rapidity with which bills are absorbed, continue to give force to bills are absorbed, continue to give force to the statements of those who are talking about heavy exports of the yellow metal during the next couple of months. The prompt adjustment of the labor troubles at the Chi-cago fair has far less effect than anticipated. The weakness of the general list was partly cago fair has far less effect than anticipated. The weakness of the general list was partly due to a sharp onslaught upon American sugar. Sugar, which despite the statements by officers at the learning, are enormous, continues ta be pressed for sale with a degree of confidence which indicates the possession of knowledge by certain interests of an unfavorable character concerning the property. The stock declined from 104 5-8 to 102 1-2, then a rally to 103 5-8 occurred and there was no set back until after 2:15 o'clock p. m. Following that hour, however, the price ran off to 101 to 101 1-2 under an enormous pressure of sales. A good deal of long stock was forced by this drop. Simultaneously there were large offerings of Big Four, and that stock declined from 51 to 49. Usual leaders of the market yielded 1-4 to 11-4 per cent, but as they had previously advanced about as much the net changes for the day in most instances was merely fractional. Lake Shore was an exception, closing with a net loss of 11-4. St. Paul, Reading and Richmond Terminal left off precisely as they closed last night, while Missouri Pactic gained 3-8 for the day. The support to the latter apparently continues to come chiefly from inside sources. Manhattan advanced 4-4 and general electric 1 1-4, but both lost the improvement during the last hour in sympathy with the break in sugar. The transactions aggregated 202,150 shares, of which 84,000 were sugar. The market closed weak. Railroad bonds were firm. The sales were $880,000.

Unless weather conditions become much more favorable throughout the south it seems not unlikely that the low-est point has been reached for some time to come. Re-celpts at the ports are due to the shipments from the in-terior towns. This is shown by the fact that when the market is weak receives at the ports show signs of de-market is weak receipts at the ports show signs of de-creasing. Receipts at New Orleans tomorrow are sti-mated at 500 bales, against 1,500 last year. There in alto-gether a better tone in the market than for several weeks past, and the inequality between this market and Liverpool is being rapidly rectified. In fact, some of the cotton that was sold yesterday in Liverpool has been repurchased there today, and the straddles sold jout on this side. The market continued to gain strength during the afternoon, and the close was at the best prices, and showed that there were still buying orders unexecuted. Apparently there is but little cotton for sale, and with any increase in the trade demand in Europe the inequality between the two markets will be quickly rectified.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martia, Managor. NEW YORK, April 11—The market opened at a frac-tional decline from last night's close, and owing to the scarcity of sellers soon strengthened, advancing over mostly by sales there for southern account against ac-tual cotton, and on reports of rain in Texas. There was no pressure to sell today, and we think the liqui-dation is over, and that no more weak cotton is hang-ing over the market. The report of rains in Texas was contradicted, and planting there is not progressing fa-vorably. We think cotton cheap on its merits at pres-ent prices, and would advise purchases for a quick thrush on wask angle. There is wery little outside interturn on weak apots. There is very little outside interest, and we do not look for any material advance ner for any very great change from present prices until something more positive can be known about crop

THE UNICAGO MARKET

Features of the Speculative Movement in sed steady; sales 45,600 bales.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.
CHICAGO, April 11.—The government report is out and has been received throughout the world. It appears to have had its greatest effect abroad, where foreign markets have advanced fully 3 cents per bushel. It is noted that the buying for export at New York was very large, much more so than for sometime. Buying orders that came in early were all met by large offerings from some of the larger holders. The market became haggard and declined about 1 1-2 cents per bushel, rallied a little towards the close, recovering about 1-2 cents of this decline. The more conservative traders, who were buyers around 75 cents for July are disposed to take their profits and perhaps risk a little on the short sides, believing that rains are likely to follow this drought and they can reinvest at lower figures. Some of the large shorts in May were liberal buyers throughout the entire session causing an advance of about 3 cents per bishel. While reports continue to pour in confirming the low conditions that are unfavorable to winter wheat are very favorable to the seeding of spring wheat and oats and perhaps to a large increase in the acreage of corn. This has caused a depressed feeling among speculators regarding coarse grains, to which is fue the decline in corn and oats. There is a marked increase in receipts of bogs and in the quality. Buying of meats for domestic use noted the past two or three days is entirely absent today, and hog products everywhere have been in poor demand at the lowest prices. The entire market was quite active and unsettled throughout the day. By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager Closed steady. sales 45,600 bales.

Hubbard. Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, April 11—The decline in Liverpool today was rather greater than the trade expected, and was caused by the death of a prominent operator, whose holdings were thrown upon the market suddenly. This fact was known previous to our opening, and the call developed the presence of buying orders from the very best houses in the trade. Their purchases absorbed all the offerings, and the market quickly became firm and has since advanced, with one or two slight reactions, until 1:30 it is 7 points above last evening's quotations. Our Manchester advices from two different sources state that there is a better feeling in that market and more business being done, and they anticipated a better demand for cotton in Liverpool for the next ten days. From Tems the government reports that no rain has fallen. In fact, they say the prospects for rain are less favorable than they were yesterday, and understand that the decliency in rainfall has left the state in a very parched condition. The temper of the trade to look for lower prices appears to have received a check today, as the selling orders from the outside operators who have been willing to sell cotton at the decline of over 20 per pound appear exhausted. The true solution of the problem would seem to be these cotton has passed into the hands of stronger people, who regard 8c as a safe basis upon which to secure cotton for the balance of the season. In this connectation a rumor is current, which is partially confirmed, that a preminent banking house in this city has purchased in 8t. Louis 15,000 bales of cotton for investment. This investment buying is usually factor that absorbs the offerings of distressed holders. Unless

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 11—Aside from what seemed to be a gigantic effort to aqueeze Pardridge and other May shorts, the feature of today's trading in which there was comparatively small effect upon its price of the worst showing for a crop, but one, ever published by the government at this season of the year. An advance of 50 in July, it is contended, by no means represents such a condition as the government figures would warrant. July wheat opened 1½c higher than the closing figures of yesterday, and under rather free speculative offerings prices receded 1½c, then advanced %c, ruled steadler and the closing was about ½c higher than yeaterday. The present condition, taking the same acreage as last year, would imply a shortage of £2,000,000 bushels, or a crop of about $17,000,000 bushels, against $59,000,000 last year. However, based on the condition at the corresponding time a year ago—that is, $1.2—the present condition would indicate a shortage of only about 14,000,000 bushels.

Corn at the opening was %c better than the closing figures of yesterday, influenced entirely by the action of wheat. A weak tone was soon apparent, however, and a steady decline followed the offerings of several of the larger shipping and receiving concerns, principally the former, being too heavy for the local crowd to absorb, which also made the decline more sasy. The large stocks with little or no demand for any quantity from the east are responsible for the position taken by such ashippers. The action of oats and provisions were also instrumental in creating weakness. At 1½6014c decline the market ruled fairly steady, reacted &6% and closed with \(\frac{1}{16}\) in the provision were have instrumental in creating weakness. At 1½6014c decline the market ruled fairly steady, reacted &6% and closed with \(\frac{1}{16}\) in the solution by scattering holders was the feature, in sympathy with the decline in corn and reports of rain. Who Is Going to Be Bleeted Colonel of the Regiment-Other Gossip Among the Military Men.

It has been asked very often among the military men of Atlanta why the military companies of this city were left out of the encampment this year.

At the last meeting of the military advisory board of the state it was decided that with the feeble appropriation allowed the military by the Georgia legislature, it would not be feasible to admit all of the military forces into camp this year at Griffin, and a list of the companies to be admitted was made out.

Why Atlanta's Companies Are Not Al-Mr. Rawson's Funeral Will Occur from Trinity This Morning.

THERE WILL BE NO COURT TODAY.

Adjourned Out of Respect to the Memory of the Deceased-The Interment Will Occur in Oakland.

The funeral of Mr. E. E. Rawson will occur from Trinity church this morning at 10:30 o'clock, and all that is mortal of this good man will be laid to rest in Oakland cemetery.

All day yesterday the Rawson home stead was crowded with callers eager to take a last look at the familiar features which they had known in life. Among those who called at the house were the friends who had been associated with Mr. Rawson for more than forty years in this city, and the sorrow which they manifest-ed was a beautiful tribute to his life and

The services this morning will no doubt be largely attended. The pallbearers have been selected from his intimate friends and acquaintances, while a larger number of those who were associated with him in business and religious circles will constitute the honorary escort.

Pallbearers.

Pallbearers.

The following gentlemen will act as pallbearers: W. F. Slaton, R. J. Lowry, D. A Beatie, Judge Howord Van Epps, G. T. Dodd, W. L. Peel, E. W Martin and R. T. Dorsey

These gentlemen will constitute the honorary escort: G. W. Adair, E. W. Marsh, A. D. Adair, N. J. Hammond, Judge Logan E. Bleckley, W. P. Pattillio, J. H. Porter, F. M. Coker, E. Andrews, Judge John Erskine, W. D. Ellis, M. C. Kiser, S. B. Hoyt, T. B. Neal, A. J. Shropshire, W. J. Garrett, J. W. Rucker, Waiker Inman, Dr. A. W. Caihoun, Henry Hirsch, Paul Romare, J. W. English, Dr. H. P. Cooper, Dr. W. S. Kendrick, W. A. Hemphill, George Hillyer, John A. Smith, Judge W. L. Calhoun, W. M. Middlebrooks, W. H. Brotherton, J. E. Williams and T. L. Scrutchins.

Adjournment of Court Today.

There will be no sessions of any of the courts today on account of the death of Mr. Rawson. The superior court, presided over by Judge Marshall Clarke, adjourns for the reason that Mr. Rawson was the brother-in-law of Judge Clarke, while the city court, presided over by Judge Westmoreland, adjourns for the reason that the latter is a son-in-law of Mr. Rawson. Judge Van Epps has adjourned his court for today out of respect for his colleagues whose bereavement is such as to make it a proper action of sympathy.

Order from Judge Van Epps.

The following order has been issued by Adjournment of Court Today.

a captain now, and the battalion has no head, Colonel W. L. Calhoun having resigned his office.

"We had hoped that the companies forming the Fourth Georgia battalion would get themselves together and elect a colonel before this time. In fact, the date was fixed at headquarters for this election some time ago, but for some reasons the companies forming the battalion could not elect the officer that day, and asked for more time. The time was allowed them and as yet we have not heard anything about the result of the further investigation of the offiers whose duty it is to elect the colonel.

"All or these things coming along at the time they did, made it an unfortunate combination of circumstances which acted against Atlanta in the matter of forming a list of companies to go into camp this year at Griffin.

"It must be remembered, however, that there will only be half of the companies of the entire state at the encampment this year, and that with such an arrangement we could not have taken all of the companies of a section into ranks there. All of the companies forming the regiment in the southwest corner of the state are left out also, and one of the regiments in Savannah will not be there. It was unfortunate for Atlanta, but under the circumstances it could not be helped. I am sure that the soldiers of Atlanta fully understand the position of the advisory board."

Who Will Be Colonel? Order from Judge Van Epps.

The following order has been issued by Judge Van Epps:

Mr. E. E. Rawson, an old and honored citizen of Atlanta, the father-in-law of his honor, Thomas P. Westmoreland, the judge of the second division of the city court, and a brother-in-law of his honor, Marshall J. Clarke, judge of the superior court of Fulton county, having departed this life, it is ordered that the court, at the conclusion of this day's business, do adjourn until Thursday, April 13th, in order that the presiding judge, the officers and the bar of the court here may be allowed to pay the last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased. In open court, this April 11, 1893.

HOWARD VAN EPPS,

of the otheers of the battalion in filling his place seems to be stayed by some power. It is known that a great strength was developed in behalf of Colonel Albert Howell for the eoffice but that he would not allow the use of his name for the place by his friends. He was seen by many of them in an informal way and a great pressure was brought to bear to get him to accept the office, but he declined every time preferring that his name be not brought before the officers for election. On account of the active part which Mr. Rawson took in municipal affairs, and his connection for such a long time with the board of water commissioners, the mayor has issued the followfing order:

In honor of the long and honorable service rendered the city of Atlanta by the late E. E. Rawson as a member of the city council and member of the board of education and water commissioners, and his public spirit as an officer and private citizen, a special meeting of the council is hereby called for 9.45 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, April 12th. instant, to take suitable action on his death and to attend the funeral at the church.

JOHN B. GOODWIN, Mayor.

An Escort of Pioneers. Special Meeting of the Council. The officers for election.

The name of Quartermaster General West was also brought up by some of his friends and was discussed with much favor by the officers who have always had a great fondness for him. But, it is said upon good authority, that the quartermaster general would not allow the use of his name on the ground that he would be so busy with the work of preparing for the encampment for the next two or three months, that he could not think of taking the place. He is a great enthusiast on military matters and has made a most efficient officer in charge of the encampment each year, but thinks that he could not very well leave the office of quartermaster general just at this time when more attention is needed than before.

An Escort of Ploneers. The members of the Pioneer Citizens Society will please attend the funeral services of Mr. E. E. Rawson at Trinity church Wednesday (12th iustant) at 10:30 o'clock

Wednesday (12th Instant) at 20.00 a. m.

A few weeks ago a Chicago gentleman, who had been in Atlanta a short time, returned to his home. The brief absence had wrought such a change in him that he was not at first recognized by his own family. For years he had suffered from a chronic complaint of rather a complicated character. He had been in the hands of the doctors so long, and had endured such pain that when he left home he was but a shadow of his former self. So now, when he returned in perfect health the surprise was complete. The happy chauge was the result of using for a short time the treatment of DR. HATHAWAY & CO., the eminent specialists of this city. Their success is marvelous and you are sure of obtaining prompt and satisfactory results at a low and reasonable fee with all medicines furnished free.

A Remarkable Career.

A Remarkable Career.

The Charleston News and Courier gives this interesting sketch of Governor Magrath:
Andrew Gordon Magrath was born in Charleston February 8, 1813. He was of Irish de scent, his father having been engaged in the Irish rebellion of 1798, for which he was arrested, but, escaping, fled to this country, and, having engaged in business as a merchant died at an advanced age in this city. The early education of young Magrath was received at Bishop England's school, where he remained until 1827, when he entered the South Carolina college, and was graduated thence with high honors in 1831, the Rev. James H. Thornwell, the distinguished Presbyterian divine, being one of his classmates. He studied law under the late James L. Petigru, and in 1832 entered the law school at Harvard university, graduating thence under the direction of Judge Story.

Admitted to the bar in 1835, he at once commenced the practice of his profession in Charleston under the most favorable auspices. He was elected to the state legislature as a member from Charleston in 1840 and re-A Kemaranbie Career.

elected in 1842, and at the expiration of that term withdrew from active political life and devoted all his energies to his profession. In 1850, when separate state action was urged by a large party in the state, he was conspicuous among those who opposed and defeated it. In the convention called for the consideration of that question he was elected and satisfied of the control control of the control of the state of the control of the state of the control of the control of the control of the control of the state of the control of the state of the control of the control of the state of the control of the state of the control of the states.

In the presidential contest between Taylor and Cass he sided with that portion of the democratic party in the state which supported Zachary Taylor. In 1856 he was elected a delegate to represent the state at large in the democratic convention at Cincinnati for the nomination of a candidate for the presidency, but before the meeting of the convention he was appointed in April of that year, by President Pierce, district judge of the trate of South Carolina and thereupon residency, but before the meeting of the convention he was appointed in April of the year, by President Pierce, district judge of the lime of his promotion to the bench he was in the enjoyment of a very incrutive practice in his profession, and during his tenure of this indicial office raised by his efforts the United States courts in the state of South Carolina to a position of high distinction.

He continued on the bench until November, 1860, when the election of Abraham Lincoln produced everywhere in the slave-holding states the greatest excitement. Judge Magrath, yielding to his sense of obligation the to his state, and recognizing its rights in the great contingency which had been thus brought about, immediately son in his resistant of the president Buchezian of Normholes and the productive of some embarrassment to you if you were not aware of it until the emergency arose. In anticipation, therefore, of tha break the covenant we have made with each other."

The manner and act were equally impressive and affecting as Judge Magrath divested himself of the judicial robe, which he had worn with acceptance, fidelity and honor to claim the independent position and privileges of a citizen of South Carolina. Eloquent addresses were made to the bench by the officers of the court and the members of the bar, and a condial tribute borne to the uniform courtesy, promptitude and strict impartiality which had distinguished Judge Magrath's judicial career. In the evening a meeting of the most influential men of the city was held at the Charleston hotel, and thence a procession of fully 2,000 people, accompanied by a band of music, marched to his private residence and in response to enthusiastic cheering were addressed by the judge.

The news of his resignation, which was followed by other United States officers, was received with acclamations throughout the state, and Georgia, and salutes and illuminations everywhere testified the hearty opproval with which his course was viewed. Acts of the vacated offices were filed by the United States government. A feeling of the most intense excitement prevailed among all classes. An immense gathering of the people took place at the institute hall, and Judge Magrath, the Hon. W. F. Coleock and James Conner who had filled the place of district attorney and who had resigned his place subsequently to achieve a reputation so honorable in the army of thes confederate states. Ind

Immediately after his resignation he was-eas ted my a large majority at the head of the ticket as delegate to the convention which passed the ordinance of secession, and while still a member of that body was selected by Governor Pickens as a leading member of, has cabling Governor Pickens as a leading member of his cabinet.

As soon as the confederate government was established he was appointed one of the judges for the confederate states for South Carolina. In the exercise of the duties of his office he was called upon to decide many questions of public law, among which was that of the right of the confederate states to confiscate the property of its alien enemies; decisions of price of with reference to belligerent vessels bearing commissions of the decisions of prine and with reference to beligerent vessels bearing commissions of the confederate states, and other important questions. He retained the office until November, 1864, when at the meeting of the legislature of that year he was elected governor of South Carolina.

1864. when at the meeting of the legislature of that year he was elected governor of South Carolina.

Governor Magrath was inaugurated on the 20th of December, 1864; the cath of office was administered by the Hon. W. D. Porter, then president of the senate. The newspapers of the day refer to it as "a gala day." Sherman was ignored and a sense of temporary oblivion of the wasting army he commands and of the horrible deeds they perpetrated indulged in almost universally. "From an early hour througs of the fair sex poured into the statehoise by all the avenues of the city. " The new governor was to be inaugurated."

The inaugural address of Governor Magrath was a calm and eloquent vindication of his state and an appeal to the people to be firm and undismayed amid the reverses that had come upon them.

During the tenure of Governor Magrath of the gubernatorial office the state passed through a period of the greatest and most fearful depression it has ever experienced. The treasury bankrupt, the state invaded, the people impoverished and discouraged, helpless in the present, hopeless in the future. Prior to Sherman's occupation of Columbia all the state archives possible were removed and the remainder destroyed. Governor Magrath, leaving the capital the same morning that it was occupied by the federal troops, returned to it to find the Garden City a heap of smouldering ruins.

At the fall of the confederacy in April, 1865, he was arrested by order of the government of the United States and confined at Fort Pulaskl. Knowing that his arrest was ordered and hopeless of the contest Governor Magrath on the 22d of May, 1865, to the people of South Carolina published his last official communication. After referring to the orders which charged him with disloyalty to the United States, having committed sundry and divers acts of treason against the same and forbidding obeddence to him as the governor of the state, he said:

"He cannot, under all the circumstances which surround vou, expos you to the contest does which with th to myself as your executive, or to you as a people whose welfare is dear to me, is at once, plain and imperative. I will not introduce within this state discord or contention of the content of the state and the government of the United States. The functions, therefore, of the executive are suspended by me from this day. Whatever, therefore, may be the feelings which belong to me as a man or a citizen, in a case like this where conviction precedes the hearing and sertence comes before trial I feel that it becomes me to be mindful of the considerations which involve your pelice and affect your welfare. I have said to you before—I say to you now—the war is over; hostilities have ceased and it is your duty to forbear opposition which is hopeless, contest which is unavailing, and reconcile to yourselves that submission which the government of the United States can impose and you cannot resist. In thus suspending the active exercise of the duties of my office, I do so with the most earnest wish that your sufferings may soon find mitigation and relief; that you may retrieve the waste and loss of property which you have endured in the progress of the war, and that you may experience those blessings, intellectual, social and moral, which under the favor of God were the great ends which I desired to accomplish. To have succeeded in these would have secured to me a reward, the richest and only inheritance which I could have left to my children. With regard to myself, so far as I am affected by the charges which are made against me. I am ready to answer to them, or to any of them. President Johnson, made a strong appeal to the president for his release, but it was not until the latter end of December of that year that he was liberated on his parole. Released from imprisonment he returned to Charleston, where he resumed the practice of law, and soon re-established himself in a successful and lucrative practice. Among those excepted from the right to hold office, his disabilities not removed, he did not take any active part in politics, but his opinions were not withheld, and they constantly inculcated the wisdom of that liberal and conservative temper which has recently been adopted, and the happy results of which are now so much felt and widely acknowledged.

From the very commencement of the career Judge Magrath commanded a high position and large practice at the bar and few men attained to such distinguished professional eminence. There has been scarcely an important case while he was at the bar during the last thirty years in which he did not take a proportion part. Then encarted to the first here the United States court in South Carolina.

portant case while he was at the bar during the last thirty years in which he did not take a prometable part. Then enevated to the part the United States court in South Carolina was in great disfavor; but little business was transacted in it, parties resorting almost exclusively to the state court. His abilities and close attention to the duties of the office at once commanded the entire confidence of the bar, and in consequence of it the business of the court rapidly increased to large proportions and continued to increase during his occupation of the bench. It is somewhat rerealisable that from the adoption of the constitution of the United States to the time when Judge Magrath was appointed to the bench no term had ever been held in the western district of the state. Within a few months after his appointment Judge Magrath opened the court at Greenville, with the power of a circuit as well as a district court, and the terms of that court have since been regularly held.

While no one was more liked by his contemporarles, Judge Magrath was exceedingly popular with the younger members of the bar. His genial social qualities endeared him to a host of friends, while his great public services have won for him the warm respect and confidence of the people of his native state.

THE PEOPLE CALLED TO PRAYER,

Dr. T. R. Kendall's Great Revival Takes Strong Root, and the Result Is Highly Satisfactory.

One of the strongest and deepest revival movements that the religious life of Atlan-ta has known since 1885 is now in progress under the direction of the pastor and con-gregation of Grace church on the Boulevard. It began some three weeks ago. Rev. Dr. Kendall, the pastor, had been carefully preparing the way for special services since he came to the charge in December. His own notable personal piety and his prayerful earnestness for the salvation of souls began to inflame the desires of the more spiritual of the congregation. They gave signs of a restlessness that encouraged the pastor until at last it seemed time for the work to begin. Making known his purposes he called upon the congregation to enter heartily into the work of salvation, and they pledged him their fullest co-operation. A Peculiar People.

The congregation of Grace church is one of rare characteristics. It has been famous from its organization for holding fast to the missionary fire from which its own and commerce work side by side, under Christian enthusiasm, with the mechanic, the clerk, the day laborer. In a peculiar and conspicuous sense they are brethren in Christ. There are few black sheep among them-few who find it comfortable to practice the forms of the religion that they are known not to possess in spirit and in truth. They are a people who love earnest, honest and plain preaching; they rejoice in singing the old-fashioned "hallelujah" hymns; they believe in a conscious, personal experience of divine power; they are not afraid to say "amen" to denunciations of sin and to ex-hortations to holiness. They have not grown rich and lukewarm, fashionable and conservative, formal and cowardly, hence, with a pastor whose faith is supreme whose prayer is constant and whose gentle ness is of the same magnetic spirit as that of the Master, it is no wonder that this people have shown before and are now showing signally that they have power with

Rev. Dr. T. R. Kendall is almost too well known in Atlanta to need sketching here His features are familiar to all At lantians of more than ten years' residence He was for a full term of years the devoted and popular pastor of Trinity church, and during that pastorate won his way to the hearts of thousands and made himself one of the most popular preachers in the north Georgia conference. He was as ten-der as the loving John the Divine in the der as the loving John the Divine in the Sunday schoolroom among the youth; he was earnest and gentle in his preaching of the eternal truth in the great congregation, and his pastoral visitations and sels were full of wisdom, comfort and shepsels were full of wisdom, comfort and snep-herd-like love. Afterwards at Rome and in Macon he served with increasing useful-ness and distinction, and when, at the last conference, Bishop Fitzgerald sent him back to Atlanta and to Grace church, the people heard the news with gladness and there be-gan at once an upward movement in the membership and spiritual growth of the congregation,

After two weeks' of service daily held in After two weeks of service daily held in the church building it became evident that more room must be made for the increasing congregations. As the season of the year permitted the use of a tent, one was procured and pitched upon the vacant lot at the corner of Houston and Jackson streets. It is a large and comfortable canvas tabernacle is ntted with platform and audience chairs for fully a thousand people. It is lighted with electric lights, and in every way serves the purpose for which it is ence chairs for fully a thousand people. It is lighted with electric lights, and in every way serves the purpose for which it is spread.

Now it begins to look as if the movement among the people would outgrow even these accommodations. Night after night hundreds have to stand about the outskirts of the tent to hear the sermons and singing. It may become necessary in a few days more to enlarge the capacity of the tabernacle, if possible, or make some other and greater provision to house the people who are eager to hear the great salvation preached to their waiting souls.

Interest in the meetings held at the tent has gone out over the whole city and from its utternest borders, from West End, Grant park. Peachtree and Edgewood, the people come night after night to attend the services. Many earnest and devoted workers from other churches and denominations help to swell the crowds and take held upon the laboring ears.

ter. Kendall's Personality.

" For cleaning Glass, Bon and Paint, Ami grows up a feeling that this is the focal point of all the Christian endeavor that has been put forth in the churches of the city for many weeks past, and that here, under the providential tabernacle, will be gathered the fire and forces of holy zeal that will eventually spread out into a sweeping revival from end to end of the city. Many are praying that it may be even so.

What Dr. Scott Says of It.

Speaking of the work at the tent Despite of the city.

Speaking of the work at the tent, Rev. Dr. W. J. Scott said yesterday:

"The tent meeting Sunday, which I attended, constituted that a red-letter day with Grace church. From the opening prayer by Dr. Kendall to the doxology, it was a phenomenal religious service. Dr. Boring's sormon, founded on the character of the Prophet Daniel, was a fine effort, enlivening and edifying. Scores asked the prayers of the church and seven or eight persons united with the church on profession. The congregation was immense, and all the city churches were largely represented. The afternoon services by Rev. Sam Sma'l was designed for men only, and before the appointed hour, the tent was crowded. Mr. Small touched up the popular vices of the day in a fashion that burned and blistered. It was a powerful discourse, long to be remembered. Over fifty persons responded to the invitation to follow after Christ and live better lives. Charley Tillman was the Asaph of the occasion, and his rendition of the 'Old Time Religion,' along with an excellant choir, was a striking feature of the services. Just now the Boulevard tent is the religious storm-center of the city."

The services at the tent are indeed the talk of the city in religious circles, and yet the good work is but just begun.

The Helpers. The Helpers.

The preaching of Rev. Dr. Boring has been of immense influence in these meetings. Especially in his spiritual exhortations to the church has his work been effectable. He will continue to aid Dr. Kendall in the further progress of the work.

Charley Tillman, the sweet-singing evangelist, often aided by his venerable father, leads the singing. His gospel songs tre powerful levers for good and the solos and concerted singing by himself and father are touching, inspiring and often converting.

The weather all over the state has been The weather all over the state has been reported as very warm, the maximum being 85 degrees. Mai showed up in some portions of the state, but enough to do no damage. Vegetables are growing rapidly, and in the southern section of the state, peaches are developed to a slight extent. Preparations for cotton planting are under way in great shape.

In the matter of rain, the central counties In the matter of rain, the central counties have been worsted and the soil is beginning to harden under the influence of a very warm sun. Some watermelon fields have been planted, and a fine crop of this fruit is predicted. Rain is also needed in eastern Georgia. Corn is about all planted although it is a little late, the rain delaying the planting during the letter part of March. ng during the latter part of March. Weather Crop Bulletin No. 2.

Weather Crop Bulletin No. 2.

The rainfall in the northwest section durther past week has been in light showers. Hail was reported on the 4th and 5th, which caused slight damage in Gordon county. The light showers which have kept the soil in good condition for plowing and have benefited all growing vegetation, have rendered it a favorable week for farm work. The latter is repidly progressing. The week has been very warm, with temperature much above the normal, the maxima ranging from 75 to 85 degrees. Upland corn is nearly all planted and good stands are reported. On lowlands corn planting has just commenced. Wheat and oats are doing well. Fertilizers are being hauled and distributed and farmers are rushing to get their crops in. Wheat and clover and all grasses are growing rapidly. Forest trees are budding out and the pastures are becoming green. The fruit crop was injured slightly by the cold weather of March, but in most places there is a prospect of a good yield. The potato crop is about ten days late.

The weather conditions in the northern counties have been quite favorable for farm work, although there have been only a few scattered showers and in some localities the soil is hardened by the warm sunshing weather and a little more rain is needed. Preparations for planting cotton are being pushed rapidly forward and in some counties where the weather has been exceptionably favorable, considerable planting has been done, while in other places very little if any has yet been completed. Upland corn has about all been planted and some correspondents report the entire crop in and prospects favorable for an average yield. The acreage is decidedly more than that of last year. Wheat, oats and rye are in excellent conditions and farmers predict a big crop. Vegetables are growing rapidly, while all fruit is flourishing, apple and peach trees in full bloom, while in some of the most southerly counties of the section peaches are developed to a slight extent, but complaints are mad developed to a slight extent, but complaints are made that they are falling off somewhat. The planting of Irish potatoes is in progress.

At some points in the northeast section there have been one or two light showers. On the 4th hail was reported, but did no damage. At a majority of stations there has been no rain at all and moderate showers would be highly beneficial for sprouting seeds. The week has been hot, extremes of of $5 degrees being reported. Under these conditions the advancements of crops has been satisfactory. The planting of upland corn is practically completed and otton planting is beginning except in the extreme north. The general warmth of the past week has brought up good stands of early planted corn. The damage to peaches by the March cold does not seem to have been very much. Apples are blooming in the most northerly counties. Wheat is reported in admirable condition and fall oats are looking well. Spring oats are not doing so well. All small grain would be benefited by rain at this time.

Farm work in western Georgia is, as usual, well advanced. The past week has been very favorable for all kinds of work and likewise the growth of all crops has materially advanced. The need of rain is beginning to be felt, the more so on account of the continued high temperature and the abundance of sunshine, which, together, are drying up the soil rapidly. Cotton planting is progressing rapidly and is somewhat farther advanced than at this time last year. Large quantities of commercial fertilizers have been bought and the crop is receiving the proper attention necessary for a good start. The acreage of corn promises to be good. Uplond corn is now nearly all up and the crop on the lowlands is being rapidly planted. Wheat and oats are reported as looking well where early planted. Gardens are in fine condition. The fruit crop this season is the cynosure of all eyes and if no late frosts occur the crop, including peaches, pears, cherries, grapes, etc., seems to be destined to be one of the best for years.

With very few exceptions there has been little or no rain in the central counties. The week has been one of bright sunshine and high temperature and rather windy. A warm rain is now needed, as the soil has begun to bake on red clay lands. Early planted corn has come to good stands. Corn planting is about over and a good deal of cotton is planted, while a little is already up. Occasional complaint is made of moles and bud-worms injuring corn. Crops are still a little backward from the early cold. In some instances the peach crop is thought to be damaged from the same cause, but as a rule the outlook for fruit is very bright. Garden vegetables have a good start and are growing well, although they begin to need rain. Melon fields have been planted the past week. A disposition on the part of farmers to raise more food crops is apparent. Many are increasing the number of their fattening. The condition of wheat and oats is generally excellent, but the ground is getting too dry and spring oats are a little backward on account of the late spring.

In eastern Georgia rain is needed. There seems to be a unanimous feeling in this portion of the state that until rain falls crops not now up will be prevented from coming up. Planting of cotton in some districts has already about come to a standstill on account of the continued dryness of the soil. Other than lack of moisture the weather has been excellent for farm work. Plenty of sunshine and every day a warm one has shaped things so that in the language of the reporter, "farming is booming." Of course, it is too early in the season to tell just how the cotton crop will start off this year, whether in good or poor stands, but one thing is certain, the crop is receiving every attention necessary for a good appearance and a fair start. Wheat and oats are coming along in about the usual manner, not a very large acreage this year, The rice crop looks well. Peas are nearly ready to pick. Potatoes are in good shape. Large quantities of sweet potatoes have been planted this season.

CROP BULLETTH NO. 2,

Up to date. Corn planting has generally been completed and some of the crop up, being about a week shead of last year's crop. There is an increased acreage in almost every county. Oats are in exceptionally fine condition and also show an increase in acreage. Cotton, the staple and most important crop for the planter, is not all planted, but will be during the next week. Such portion of the crop as has been planted is growing nicely and stands are fine. Some reporters say that about 75 per cent of the crop will not come up until rain falls. Reports relative to to-bacco are very meager, but from the few received it is shown that there is a decided decrease in the acreage of this crop. Melon planting continues, although nearly finished. The hot weather of the past week has been specially beneficial for this crop. Of groundpeas and potatoes there seems to be an increase in acreage—the former being largely increased over last year.

Save for a few scattered showers on the crop. Of groundpeas and potatoes there seems to be an increase in acreage—the former being largely increased over last year.

Save for a few scattered showers on the 5th there has been no rainfall in the south section. The temperature was about the same here as farther north and about normal for the season. The planting of corn and cotton is nearly completed in the southerly counties. Crops are doing very well at present and many cornfields are ready for the plow. In some instances the top of the ground is so dry that recently planted seed will not come up. Garden crops are flourishing and the indications are excellent for fruit. The stands of corn are good and no complaints are received of injury by worms, but some has been pulled by birds so as to require replanting. The work of it has begun. A much larger proportion of long staple cotton is being planted in some counties. All reports as to the condition of oats are favorable.

The past week has been marked by a deficiency and unequal distribution of rainfall throughout the southeastern counties. Warm and sunshiny weather has also been general. Very little is reported relative to Sea island cotton, but from the few reports received it is shown that this variety is somewhat backward in development. The cold weather during the latter part of March caused some delay in planting all varieties and the drought of the past week has retarded the growth. Rice planting is not far advanced. Corn is generally all planted and some coming up in fine shape. The planting of this crop was somewhat delayed by the excessive rains during the latter part of March, and the maturing, therefore, will probably be somewhat late than usual unless the weather should be unusually favorable for rapid growth. Oats are in fine condition and promise an excellent crop. The fruit crop, as a whole, is probably not so good as could be wished. Of pears the cron appears decidedly below the average in quantity, while peaches are scarce and plums have also been injured somewhat by frosts.

For Sale, April 12, at 4:30 O'clock,

THE COOK RESIDENCE, No. 313 on Peachtree Street.

This elegant 10-room house is new and has all of the late improvements to make house-keeping a pleasure. Hot and cold water closets, bath rooms, gas and electricity, finnished in beautiful hard wood. This is justly regarded as the most desirable part of Peachtree. Being just north of the Peachtree junction at Baker street, you can either walk into the city or ride upon the electric cars. Then, when you wish a pleasant drive, the smooth polished asphalt is before your door, extending north and south for blocks away. Stables, carriage house and everything necessary to make this a perfect home are all ready for use. As far as the eye can reach magnificent buildings containing delightful neighbors, greet you. There is literally nothing objectionable to be found in this locality. This lot extends from Peachtree to Ivy street, furnishing easy access to the premises from both streets. The house is unusually well built; none but the best material was allowed to go into the building. It was intended for a permanent home for the owner, but death places it upon the market to the highest bidder. Wednesday. April 12th, at 4:30 o'clock. Terms, one-third cash. balance on time. The sale will be absolute.

Gin and Buchu

For the last few years kidney disease has been rapidly on the increase.

Instdious in its approach—alarming in its consequences—this terrible scourge has cut down some of the brightest intellects of the age. Many suffer from kidney trouble long before they are aware of the true character of their complaint.

In disease any neglect or delay is dangerous. This is peculiarly true of all kidney affections. As soon as the first symptoms appear, treatment should commence.

Dull pain in the back, weakness over the loins or tenderness upon pressure, scanty or reddish urine, cloudy after standing, brick dust deposit, albumen or uric acid reaction, smarting or burning pains in passing water, etc., are danger signals, and should be promptly heeded.

Stuart's Gin and Buchu

The Grand Jurors Are Finding Out Something They Did Not Know Before.

THEIR NET IS CATCHING FISH.

But the Legal Meshes May Not Hold Them The Investitation Is Expected to Continue for a Week Longer.

The grand jury which is investigating the Gate City bank case seems to have struck It must be remembered that this is the third time the court authorities have gone over this ground. The expression ed early in the case that the plowing would be deep fits to a nicety. It is subsoiling. First there was an investigation by Attorney Darnell. Then Captain Harry Jackson went into the case and the plowing was a little deeper. Mr. Olney, the attorney general, stopped the proceedings for two weeks, and now, for the third time, the investigation is under way.

Mr. Ed McCandless, the cashier of the Gate City bank, was the chief witness yes-terday. He was in the jury room for three hours. The evidence which he gave is one of the secrets of the court, but it is presumed to have been comprehensive One thing is certain. The authorities think that they are touching bottom. The jurors had a satisfied look when they came out of the room. They had gained a pretty good insight into the banking business and began to see how the $103,000 might have

On Monday it was understood that the seven indictments which were drawn two weeks ago had been discarded. But yesterday the impression got out that another batch would be drafted and now it is thought that seven more indictments will be found.

is thought that seven more indictatents will be found.

It is possible that the number will run up to eleven. Who the parties are that are under suspicion would not do to tell—until the true bills are announced in court. The testimony is nebulous as yet on the point of complicity of the majority of persons suspected, but the jurors are probling in the hole where the money went and they think that they will locate something definite before they exhaust their witnesses. Last night it looked as though the investigation would continue a week longer. There is a mass of evidence to be brought out and the inquiries are thorough. This week the affairs of the Atlanta and Florida Railway Company have been under investigation. The jury has obtained evidence going to show that Lew-be brought out and the inquiries are thorough. This week the affairs of the Atlanta and Florida Railway Company have been under investigation. The jury has obtained evidence going to show that Lewis Redwine delivered money to borrowers on the supposition that it was to be used for carrying out a deal in which the Atlanta and Florida figured. After a large sum was delivered for that purpose he was importuned to give additional assistance in order to get back what had been used. He was in for it anyway, and when informed that more cash was indispensable to carry the scheme through he yielded. There is a supposition that he was to have a good share of the profit in the event that the plan was a success and the road was sold for the large sum asked for it. He said that he was in the power of the parties who came to him. The source of that power has not been explained.

One thing which has been brought out is the evidence that Lewis Redwine was about to skip out when the discovery was made that he was short. It is firmly believed that he intended to leave the city on Tuesday night and seeing that he was watched by Mr. Hill, he left hurriedly. He had carefully prepared to go and had destroyed many of his private papers. Some though, he had not destroyed, and they will fasten the design on him or there is nothing in circumstantial evidence. That he removed from the bank several thousand dollars the last two or three days that he was there seems certain. By a strange coincidence, the pains which he took to cover up his tracks operated to make his plans more clear and facts of which he and his counsel will probably be ignorant until the day of trial, are in the possession of the government's counsel. There is said to be evidence extant which he had every reason to believe was destroyed. This evidence is just what he and others would want beyond the reach of the authorities. And it was the merest accident that it was preserved.

A traveling man who bas been all over Georgia, Florida and western Alabama during the last si during the last six weeks, says that the looting of the bank is the universal topic of discussion everywhere. All through the country there is an impression that parties who are undoubtedly innocent are really guilty. There is a feeling, too, that the full facts of the case will not be brought out. Around the courthouse more satisfaction is expressed with the progress of the investigation than at any time here-tofore.

To get at the facts regarding Hood's Sarsa-parilla ask the people who take this medicine, or read the testimonials often published in this paper. They will convince you Hood's cures. THEY WILL MEET AGAIN TODAY.

The County Commissioners Will Meet in Extra Session to Finish Up Their Work.

Extra session to Finish Up Their Work.

There will be an extra session of the bourd of county commissioners this morning. The purpose of the meeting will be to settle the time for holding the county election on the issuing of the proposed bonds, and also to discuss the merits of the contemplated road to McPherson's barracks.

It was decided in effect at the last meeting of the board that the election for the county bonds would be held on the 16th of May, and occur jointly with the city election for the issuance of waterworks bonds. As the city council had not met, however, and since there was the bare possibility of a change in the date it was decided to allow the ccuncil to meet first and settle the matter, after which there would be plenty of time for the commissioners to meet and arrange the matter for the 16th of May.

The settlement of a day, therefore, which will simply be a matter of form, will be the first business before the commissioners this morning.

first business before the commissioners this morning.

After this question is settled the matter of the proposedd route to the barracks will be thoroughly discussed. Captain Greenough, of the United States government, will be present and will explain the survey by the use of several maps which he has drawn for the benefit of the commissioners. He has drawn two or three different routes, in order to give the board the benefit of variety, and to show the possible ways in which the road can be built, with reference to the question of expense, and waiving the idea of cost with reference to the question of beauty and effect.

The meeting of the board this morning will be almost entirely occupied with the discussion of this matter which is prolific of much interest to the city.
